A Puzzle for Congress
Experiments in Magic Fighting Religion
If Nelson Had Married

—By Arthur Brisbane—

MORE THAN a thousand war veterans are in Washington now, close to the Capitol, where congressmen can see them. Five thousand more are on their way. And they say they "will stay in Washington until 1945, if necessary, or until they get the bonus paid in full." Also, some have said, "We are the young men of this country, we fought for it, and we propose to run it."

This will add to the hard thinking of Senate and House, now wondering how they can attend to the work on hand, including a deficit of about two thousand million dollars.

It is not a pleasure trip for the veterans. They sleep in tents and the "world's richest country" spends six cents a day on the food of each man, two meals at three cents apiece.

On Germany's "magic mountain," the Brocken, made familiar to you by Goethe, British and German psychological investigators will endeavor in the light of the full moon on June 17 or 18 "to transform a goat into a handsome youth."

The superstitious believe that the thing can be done, with the assistance of "a maiden pure of heart." Two young women, one English, one German, will be provided, in case there should be something wrong with one of them.

One of the maidens, all in white, will lead a white goat by a silver cord into a circle near a pine fire, anoint the goat with blood, honey, and scrapings of church bells, covering the goat with a sheet.

Bystanders will utter Latin incantations, and when the moon is obscured, the sheet will be removed and, it is expected, that a handsome youth will appear in place of the goat.

That probably can be arranged, if it is dark enough for a handsome young man, unobserved, to creep into the circle, while the goat creeps out.

Two despatches from Mexico remind you of Russian news. In the "State of Mexico," one of Mexico's sub-divisions, every Catholic church is closed, because Catholic authorities have not complied with legislation requiring them to name 34 priests, none to be foreigners, and no others to officiate in the state.

Another despatch says the government has taken 22,000 acres of land belonging to the Malpaso Hacienda, dividing the land among 300 unemployed laborers. Each laborer gets about 7 acres of land, and promises to cultivate it diligently.

Giving lands to people that have none, as a relief to crushing and dispossessing the church, has been part of the Russian program, as it was part of the French Revolution.

Time will tell the effects of today's fight against religion. There is no doubt that the French revolution, although it lasted but a short time, greatly weakened the hold of religion on the French people, except, perhaps, among peasants.

Samuel Johnson, in his life of Milton, expresses the opinion that to suspend religious exercises even temporarily is dangerous:

"To be of no church is dangerous. Religion, of which the rewards are distant, and which is animated only by faith and hope, will glide by degrees out of the mind, unless it be invigorated and reimpressed by external ordinances, by stated calls to worship, and the salutary influence of example."

It having been announced that young men graduating from the Naval Academy at Annapolis will be forbidden to marry within two years after leaving Annapolis, Congressman Cochran, of Missouri, will introduce a bill to prevent any such regulation.

Men in the army and navy should marry early because of the probability of their being killed young in case of war, and the desirability of their leaving descendants to fill their places.

It would have cost a good thing if Nelson had married the young Canadian girl with whom he was desperately in love, when he commanded a frigate cruising off the Atlantic coast in our war with England.

It is asserted that girl, from whom fellow officers dragged him to his ship by force, he might have left after him interesting little Nelsons and refrained from making such a fool of himself with Lady Hamilton.

Mr. Charles Woerishoffer operated in Wall Street, was a great man in that part of the country 50 years ago, and accumulated millions. His wife, who has just died, left more than ten millions, much more than two millions in government bonds.

This weakens the theory that women know nothing about business, although life insurance statistics show that it usually takes about three years for some man to get any money that a widow may inherit.

Nation-Wide Drive to Smash Gangster Rule Under Way

Gigantic Undercover Campaign Opened by Federal Operatives as Result of Lindbergh Atrocity

By A STAFF REPORTER

(Copyright, 1932, by the Boston Evening American)

The big battle is on!

The government has launched its drive to smash organized crime.

The gangs must go.

This is to be the nation's reply to the challenge of gang rule.

It is a campaign to wreck all the rackets. To bomb the citadels of crime. To destroy the vast gang system. The Lindbergh tragedy precipitated it. The finding of the baby's body was the signal for the unleashing of the hounds of the law.

Tear down and stamp out of existence the whole huge structure of the mob methods that prohibition has fostered, is the order. A system whose tentacles reach into practically every line of business.

I have the story, and here alone you may read it. The story of the federal investigation. The story of the mob system. The nation-wide, interlocking system of crime of every kind which stalks brazenly through the land to your very doorstep.

In Boston, in New York, in Chicago, Philadelphia, San Francisco and other populous centers, federal agents are at work on the co-ordinated campaign that is designed to smother it.

For weeks these special agents have been working here and elsewhere, under cover.

The Lindbergh case provided the final impetus to make it a "go through" cleanup, a battle to a showdown, a civil war, if you will, between law and outlawry.

Special Squads at Work on Separate Rackets

There is a force under Special Agent Robert Coyne. You will hear more about Coyne and his men tomorrow.

There is a specialized group under Joseph A. Tatro. I will tell you what they are after.

And there is a secret investigator here, co-operating with others in other large cities, probing the intricate, interlocking system of nationwide crime, as a result of information gathered during the Lindbergh investigation.

Following the disappearance of the Lindbergh baby, government investigators returned to Washington from work on the case with reports which fairly stunned heads of bureaus, regarding the operation of gangs.

They had learned of tieups

Characterized by the judge as "wantonly reckless, with a disregard for the lives and safety of others," George F. Heuser, 22, of Neponset ave., Roslindale, was given the maximum sentence of two years in the House of Correction today, and fined $200 in Brighton court.

Heuser, driver of a car which crashed into the coupe of Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Pollard, Jr., of Newton, killing the Pollards, and Thomas McCaffrey, of Arcola st., Roxbury, a passenger in Heuser's machine, was also held for the grand jury on three charges of manslaughter.

The crash occurred in Commonwealth ave., Brighton, almost in front of the residence of Cardinal O'Connell when Heuser, McCaffrey and two girls were returning from a camp in Cochituate.

GALLO TRIAL GIRL HELD IN BOSTON JAIL

Philomena Romano has been found—and jailed!

The diminutive, dark-eyed, enigmatic key-witness in the Joseph Fantasia murder case is back in Boston, in Charles street jail under $50,000 bonds as a material government witness for the approaching second trial of Samuel Gallo—fourth trial of the still unsettled, fantastic case.

PHILOMENA ROMANO
Found in Brooklyn after two years' search and brought back to Boston to testify in murder trial. She is held in jail here.

She had been missing more than two years after telling conflicting stories that had the government in despair.

She was found hiding in New York and she refused to say where she had been hiding.

She had been variously reported as a voluntary fugitive as a victim

BOND STORES START HEAVY BUYING

New York, June 3 (AP)—Stocks and bonds surged up in one of the broadest recoveries of the year in the New York Stock Exchange today.

It was widely rumored in usually well-informed quarters in Wall Street that arrangements had been completed between leading banks to stabilize bond prices, and that an announcement might be made after the close of the month.

The bond stabilization effort is understood to have developed from a conference of the committee of 12 bankers and industrialists headed by Owen D. Young.

BOND BUYING ACTIVE

The leading bankers reported that brisk buying appeared in the bond market. This, they said, represented the appearance of a large number of small investment orders which, however, bulked large in their total.

Gains of $10 to more than $80 per bond of $1000 par value were frequent among railroad bonds, particularly those which had been subject to heaviest pressure in recent trading sessions. Among the rail liens were New York Central 4s, which raced up $85 to above $601; Erie first prior lien 4s, up $40; Great Northern 8s, up $35, and Chicago & Northwestern 4s, which were up around $50.

LEADING STOCKS RISE

The stock market soared along as rapidly as the bond market. Buyers found it difficult to get orders executed near yesterday's closing levels and prices ran up $1 to $5 a share for many leaders.

As the rally gained momentum, large buying orders appeared, a number on the ticker tape for active issues in amounts ranging from 1000 to 3000 shares at a time. This suggested a hasty bear retreat.

The railroad stocks moved up $1 to $3 a share, active carriers including Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Chesapeake & Ohio and Norfolk & Western. The utilities threw off their apathy and moved up vigorously. American Tobacco B, Consolidated Gas, North American and United Gas Improvement were up $1 to $3 each and People's Gas went up around $5. U. S. Steel bounded up around $2 a share to close at $30 a share. American Tobacco B, Allied Chemical, Liggett & Myers B, Western Union and Woolworth were among the active issues which scored gains of around $2 to $3 a share.

The Problem

PRICES of foodstuffs, farm products, textiles, hides and leathers all reached new low levels last week, dropping one to seven points.

The Remedy

THE $5,000,000,000 National Prosperity Loan would put millions of people to work, increase their buying power and strengthen the commodity market, which is vitally necessary to the return to normal prosperity.

DENTIST NEAR DEATH IN FALL

Dr. Sol T. Fein, 40, a dentist with offices at 24 Newbury st., Back Bay, fell or leaped today from the roof of his apartment home at 30 Walnut pk., suffering injuries from which he is dying in City Hospital. The four-story plunge ended in a courtyard and the sound of the dentist striking on the concrete was heard by neighbors, who rushed to their windows.

According to the neighbors, the doctor moaned: "What a death I'm dying; what a death I'm dying," as he lay in the courtyard.

Meanwhile, his sister, with whom he lived, was ignorant of the tragedy until police arrived on call from neighbors and broke the news to her. She had believed Dr. Fein to have started for his offices in the Back Bay.

The doctor was hurried to City Hospital in a police ambulance, but surgeons said he had but slight chance to live.

Intellectual Dishonesty In the Senate

WHEN the Senate rejected the Walsh amendment to the tax bill, a majority of the senators answering the roll call voted their fears instead of their convictions.

The Walsh amendment proposed a general manufacturers' excise tax as a substitute for the conglomeration of unfair, obnoxious, and vexatious special excise taxes with which the tax bill, as it passed the Senate, is loaded down.

But the arguments in support of this amendment went unanswered because the injustice of these special excise taxes could not be denied, and the fairness and feasibility of the general manufacturers' excise tax could not be challenged.

All of the 53 senators recorded against the Walsh amendment knew perfectly well that it did not provide for a general sales tax—that is to say, a turnover tax—of the sort in operation in France.

THE French turnover tax is a tax levied on all sales, with the result, as Senator Walsh in his masterly speech pointed out, that "a given article, by the time it reaches the consumer, has borne several taxes at the various stages of transfer."

The general manufacturers' excise tax, for which the Walsh amendment provided, imposed one tax only on the finished manufactured article. It involved no tax to be paid by the producer of the raw materials. It involved no tax to be paid in any of the intermediate stages of transfer or sale.

The Walsh amendment provided for the issuing by the federal government of a license to all manufacturers and producers doing business in excess of $20,000 annually.

The purpose of this license was to allow tax-free transfer from manufacturers and producers when the article was to enter into further manufacture or production.

THE result of this arrangement would have been that there would be no tax whatever until the last manufacturer sold the completed article.

In other words, this tax would be on the value

Hausner, Trailed by Bride, Hops Off for Poland

New York, June 3 (AP)—Stanislaus Hausner of Newark, N. J., took off for Warsaw, Poland, from Floyd Bennett Field today at 9:46 p. m. He hoped to make the flight non-stop.

It was Hausner's second start on the projected solo flight to the country where he was born. Last Saturday he took off but was forced back by unfavorable weather.

He was followed today by another plane in which his pretty young wife rode as passenger intending to escort him on the first few miles of the journey.

In the plane with Mrs. Hausner was Rev. Paul Knappek, a Newark priest. Then after trailing Hausner a while, went to the Newark airport.

Hausner lifted his plane into the air at the start after running 3500 feet down the concrete runway, passing about 20 feet over a small crowd assembled to see him off. As he gained altitude, he turned the plane around and headed eastward.

His plane carried 525 gallons of gasoline. He took along four chicken sandwiches, two ham sandwiches, a gallon of coffee and a gallon of water.

After his return last Saturday Hausner dictated a brief will leaving his insurance and all other property to his wife, Martha, who has helped in all his preparations.

HOUSE GETS BIG TAX BILL TOMORROW

Conferees Agree on $1,115,000,000 Revenue Measure as Set by the Senate

BULLETIN

Washington, June 3 (AP)—The House ways and means committee today favorably reported the $2,300,000,00 Garner relief program.

Washington, June 3 (AP)—The revised revenue bill agreed upon by congressional conferees in last night's record-breaking session provides approximately $1,115,000,000—the goal set by the administration.

Clerks worked furiously today in an attempt to get the compromise legislation in form to submit to the House, where leaders plan action by tomorrow.

Forced to reach out for every available source of revenue to meet the new demands of the government, the conferees accepted the higher individual and corporation income tax rates provided by the Senate.

1921 INCOME TAXES

All four import taxes—on lumber and copper, as well as oil and coal—were kept in the bill.

The new income tax schedule is up to the 1921 level. Normal rates are 4 per cent on the first $4000 and 8 per cent on income over $4000, with a surtax schedule graduating to a minimum of 55 per cent income in excess of $1,000,000.

The corporation tax voted by the Senate is 13 per cent.

RAISED $1,117,000,000

Experts said the bill passed by the Senate raised $1,117,000,000 in new revenue. They reported that the compromise measure provides within a couple of millions of dollars the sum which the administration has declared will balance the budget with the aid of the national economy bill pending in the Senate.

It was authoritatively learned that the House conferees surrendered on virtually every provision inserted into the revenue bill by the Senate.

Rainey Fails to Sign Tax Bill Report

Washington, June 3 (AP)—Representative Rainey, the Democratic floor leader, was revealed today to have withheld his signature from the conference report adjusting differences between the House and Senate on the billion dollar tax bill.

He opposed the tariffs on lumber and copper, voted into the measure by the Senate after the House had approved import levies on oil and coal.

RASKOB 'JOLLIES' COMMITTEEMEN IN STOCK PROBE

JOB TO CONVERT ERRING G. O. P., HE DECLARES

Resigned Connection With the General Motors Except as Director in 1928

RASKOB'S HARD JOB

"What's your business?" asked William A. Gray, special attorney for the investigating committee.

"Trying to make good Democrats out of mislnided Republicans," said Raskob. "I'm the Democratic national chairman."

"I won't ask you what success you have had."

Raskob said he became associated with General Motors about 18 years ago, but could not remember when he was made an officer of the company.

GLASS INTERVENES

He resigned all connection with General Motors, except as a director in July, 1923, when he became Democratic national chairman.

Senator Glass (D.) of Virginia, asked Gray whether any other officer of the company could give the information desired.

"No," said Gray. "I intend to ask Mr. Raskob about his personal transactions in General Motors and no one else can give us that information.

"I ask that because it has been whispered around the Capitol for weeks that this investigation has been conducted to involve a number of Democrats," said Glass.

OWNED 40,000 SHARES

Raskob put in the record a detailed account of all his transactions during the years 1928 to 1931. He operated in three accounts, one called "Regular," another "Special" and a third "Consolidated." On December 31, 1931, he owned but 40,000 shares of General Motors.

"ENGINEERED FOOLS"

David M. Lion, New York publicity man, told committee how he engineered publicity campaigns for stocks in which pools were being operated.

Gray disclosed how Lion used the radio to boost stocks, employing William C. McMahon to make the radio talks. The latter was introduced to radio audiences as the president of the McMahon Institute of Financial Research.

"In every talk McMahon made he boosted the stocks in which you sold calls?" Lion was asked.

"Oh, sometimes he talked about general market conditions," was the reply.

Hitch-Hiking Season

By FRANKLIN COLLIER

WOMAN REPAYS CITY FOR AID

Salem, June 3—After Mrs. Sophia Kolanda of Norton st., Lynn, pleaded guilty in superior court here to obtaining $1215 in aid from the Lynn welfare department, although she had nearly $10,000 in banks, she repaid the city with a check for $1300.

She agreed to plead guilty to charges of defrauding after City Solicitor Patrick F. Shanahan said he would be willing to have the woman put on probation, provided she turned back the money.

Her guilty plea was made before Judge John M. Gibbs. The woman was arrested when police searched her house on a warrant issued after she had been accused of bootlegging. The police found several gallons of mash and a quantity of liquor.

In a probe ordered by Mayor J. Fred Manning it was revealed Mrs. Kolenda, a widow with two children, had been receiving $5 a week from the city since 1927, in addition she used the money to pay for her fuel. The bank books showed she had been depositing savings since 1928.

Finding Whale in Pail

—By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER—

In balancing the budget it seems that Washington has used a rubber yardstick.

It has added up a lot of figures that balance. But it is going to be tougher to collect than a bootlegger's income tax.

This time the grocer didn't weigh his thumb. He put his elbow on the scales until he got the total he wanted.

Europe is delighted with our budget. That's enough to make us suspicious.

That makes us like Simple Simon. If there is a whale in the pail he's ours.

GALLO TRIAL GIRL HERE

of violence in Italy and various sections of the East.

A fortune has been spent in the search for her. For every day of the past 17 months, Boston police and Pinkerton detectives have been on her trail. A man died in the search—Inspector Joseph (Big Joe) Cavagnaro last November sacrificed his life in the hunt.

The end of the trail was reached in Brooklyn a week ago last Wednesday under circumstances as strange and dramatic as has been the whole case, which has seen first one man convicted of the crime, then another, then the first freed and the second convicted—and the whole case overturned by the Supreme Court.

AT SISTER'S WAKE

For Philomena was caught at last keeping a vigil at the death bed of her sister, Josephine—at the wake for the widow of Joseph Fantasia, the victim of the murder.

Brooklyn was the end of the trail —the same trail that Cavagnaro had picked up and was following at the time he was killed in an auto crash at Middletown, N. Y. "Big Joe," as usual, was on the right track.

Sergt. Daniel Casey, of the Brooklyn police, and Sergts. Roberts Mooney and Maurice Sullivan, the North End officers who knew Philomena when she was a little girl and who started on for Cavagnaro, were waiting for the girl.

Sergt. Casey, who had been watching the house after communicating with the Boston officers, found her sitting by the body of her sister, Fantasia's widow. Fantasia's death had caused her to disappear. Fantasia's widow's death had caused her to reappear.

AGREES TO RETURN

"The Boston police want you to return for Gallo's trial," she was told by Casey.

"All right," she said, "but just let me get this over with."

She did not attend her sister's funeral. Last Friday she telephoned Casey she was ready and the Boston officers went. She had been lost more than two years, but it required less than an hour for her to decide she was willing to return and testify at the trial of Gallo, her erstwhile sweetheart, whom she once accused of murder, later to assert she lied at the insistence of friends of Gangi Cero, the man first convicted, then freed.

"All right, I'll go back," she told the Boston officers. "But I'll go back voluntarily. I won't be taken back. You've got to take my word for it."

ARRIVES IN BOSTON

Brooklyn police could not arrest her. There was no criminal charge against her and she could not be extradited as a material witness.

The Boston officers asked Clerk William Prendible of Suffolk Superior Court for a writ of protection, protecting her against service in any other action while in Boston. This was given and then a request was made for a criminal protection writ, which could not be supplied under Massachusetts law.

But she came back, anyway, yesterday voluntarily—and today, less than 24 hours later, her plea for freedom was denied, the court decided it could take no more chances with her and she was sent to Charles st. jail when she could not give bail of $50,000 as a material witness.

BEFORE JUDGE COX

Yesterday she went into seclusion at a place known only to Dist. Atty. William J. Foley and Sergts. Mooney and Sullivan and shortly before noon, her all mfigure secretuated by deep mourning, she was taken to the courthouse.

Questioned by Asst. Dist. Atty Daniel J. Gillen she wept openly and asked to be allowed to talk with Judge Louis Cox personally regarding her status.

This request was granted, Judge Cox declared a recess in the Varlino assault case at which he was presiding, and she went before the trial justice with the two sergeants and Gillen.

She asked to be allowed to return to Brooklyn to take care "of the children," presumably the children of her dead sister and the murder victim.

"How old are you?" Judge Cox asked.

"I am 35," she said.

"What are you doing now?"

"I am living in New York," was the enigmatic answer.

"What do you want to do?"

"I would like to go home and take care of the children," she said.

"I think as long as you are here, you better stay here," Judge Cox said. "We will do all we can for you."

SISTERS IN NEW YORK

The girl explained that two sisters from Canada, who knew nothing about New York, were there now, having come down for the funeral of Mrs. Fantasia. She said she would like to be with them till they went home.

"Well, I think you better stay here, now that you're here," said the judge.

SAVED CERO FROM CHAIR

What she will testify only she and the district attorney, who never has closed the book of the Fantasia case and the Romano search, know.

It was she who snatched Gangi Cero, first convicted of the murder, from the deathhouse on the night he was to have died, by telling Gov. Fuller, Dist. Atty. Foley and Judge Cox that she had seen Gallo fire the death shots. That was in 1928. She vanished soon afterwards and there were reports and rumors she had been threatened with death and later that she had been murdered.

But she reappeared and was a witness at the first trial of Gallo, while Cero still under sentence of death, but enjoying respite, awaited the outcome.

CHARGED WITH PERJURY

She testified and she repudiated the story that had saved Cero and caused Gallo's arrest.

Yet Gallo was convicted and she was arrested for perjury. And while the State had two men convicted for the murder of which only one could have been guilty the perjury charge against her was dismissed—and she vanished.

In September, 1930 Gallo and Cero, granted new trials, together faced a jury that was to decide which was guilty. A relentless search for the missing girl witness was being prosecuted at the time, but no lead had been uncovered by Inspector Cavagnaro.

Miss Romano's testimony that she had seen Gallo with a gun in his hand and had seen him shoot it "three or four times" was permitted to be read.

And the jury convicted Gallo—freed Cero.

Cero drew a deep breath of new life, went to New York and returned to Italy.

Gallo was sentenced to die, as Cero had been sentenced to die. Like Cero, he was granted a new trial.

Cavagnaro, in his stodgy, unrelenting way, toured through the East, seeking the vanished girl. In New York he struck a lukewarm trail. He clung to it, as only he could do, and it led him, growing warmer and warmer, to a sanitarium a few miles outside Middletown, N. Y.

There, shortly before he met death he found Philomena Romano's sister, Mrs. Fantasia. He learned that the much-sought girl had visited her there. He only he certain information, gained a Brooklyn address and left.

CAVAGNARO KILLED

With Thomas Goggin, investigator for Dist. Atty. Foley, he was en route from the sanitarium to Brooklyn to check his information when their car left the road, overturned, and the famous inspector was killed.

But the information he had gained was in possession of Goggin, who survived. It was turned over to Dist. Atty. Foley, who requested Commissioner Hultman to give him the services of Sergts Mooney and Sullivan to carry on the search. Foley, by Thomas H. Mahoney, is expected to go to trial in Suffolk Superior Court, before the month ends. It should be the last act in the fantastic Fantasia case. Asst. Dist. Atty. Daniel J. Gillen, who had been active at the three previous trials, will prosecute for the government. And Philomena Romano will testify.

IDLE MARCHERS DEMAND JOBS

A tiny army, marching behind fife and drum, mobilized and passed through the principal streets of Dedham to the selectmen's meeting where they demanded relief or work for the unemployed last night.

Forty men under the generalship of John Leonard met in East Dedham sq. at dusk. Red fire was lighted and to the beat of a drum and the piping of a fife, the little company started out. Many of the members of the troop were war veterans and many were older men.

The troop marched into the Town Hall. At the entrance to the selectmen's rooms they were greeted by Chairman of Selectmen Charles Kenworthy. Leonard told the board that they wished prompt efforts to provide jobs for the men. Kenworthy said that the board would take action immediately on the request and would communicate their decision to Leonard.

Leonard recently won a court decision against the town for $18. He went to work for the town as a laborer, without promise of pay because the appropriation was not sufficient for another laborer. Nevertheless, he worked two weeks. When he was not paid he started a suit against the town and collected one week's pay, $18.

It is expected that a special town meeting will be called to have the voters decide on extra help.

BAY STATE G.O.P. IN FRONT ROW AT CHICAGO

Chicago, June 3—California, Maine, Pennsylvania and a few of the delegates from Massachusetts won the front row "seats of honor" in the Republican national convention, which opens here a week from Tuesday.

This will make it the third successive time they have had the preferred position. Ralph E. Williams, vice-chairman of the Republican National Committee, who had charge of the arrangements, said the floor plan is the same as followed at Kansas City four years ago and at Cleveland eight years ago.

BROADCAST IN PARK

So many applications for visitors' seats have been made that Williams has arranged to broadcast the convention proceedings in Union Park. Seats will be provided for between 15,000 and 20,000. The park is within a quarter of a mile of the Chicago Auditorium, in which the convention will be held.

The party's national committee will convene here next Thursday to start hearing contests over the seating of delegations from several states.

WILL RENAME HOOVER

Organized opposition to President Hoover has made such little progress within his own party that leaders here believe he will be renominated by acclamation.

The President is admittedly unpopular, and the party chiefs in many of the large states believe he is not the strongest candidate the Republicans could select to be their standard-bearer in the election November 8.

But to choose another would compel the party to establish a precedent of being the first to refuse a second nomination to its President. That would furnish the Democrats with smashing ammunition.

Intellectual Dishonesty In the Senate

of the finished article. There would be no duplication of this tax.

All of the 53 senators recorded against the Walsh amendment knew perfectly well that it provided for a general manufacturers' excise tax of the sort which Canada has found to be fair, effective, and popular.

Yet in the face of these facts well known to every senator on the floor, Senator Dill of Washington had the effrontery to insert in the record as an excuse for his vote against the Walsh amendment a news dispatch from Paris about the unpopularity in France of the French general sales or turnover tax, which was not provided for by the Walsh amendment, nor proposed by any member of the Senate.

It was misrepresentation of this sort to which the Senate stooped when it refused to substitute for vexatious special excise taxes a general manufacturers' excise tax.

NO senator would stoop to such misrepresentation who was not afraid to tell the people the truth and who did not doubt the capacity of the people to judge rightly when they know the truth.

Senator Bailey of North Carolina rightly rebuked these fears and doubts on the part of those senators who voted against the Walsh amendment when he said:

"I believe, and I would trust myself with that belief, that if we should impose this general manufacturers' excise tax it would reach out lightly, and even though it touched millions of people they would rejoice in their opportunity to make a contribution to the welfare of our country in a time like this."

THE general manufacturers' excise tax was rejected by the Senate because a majority of the senators do not share the respect of Senator Walsh for the intelligence of the American people, and the faith of Senator Bailey in their patriotism.

If the tax bill becomes a law in the form that it passed the Senate, the folly of swindling the poor under the pretense of soaking the rich, instead of reviving prosperity, will soon pass poverty around.

And the blame for such a calamity will rest primarily upon those senators who flinched from telling the American people the truth in a crisis when they are entitled to hear the truth from those who pretend to represent them in the Congress.

U. S. EMPLOYES FACE 10 P. C. WAGE CUT

Johnson Pleads to Exempt the Low Salaries, but Little Hope Is Held

Washington, June 3 (INS)—Following a warning by Senator Johnson (R.), of California, that the proposed ten per cent slash in the wages of poorly-paid government employes would result in a lowering of the American standard of living, the Senate today considered an amendment to exempt salaries below $2500.

The national emergency committee of the American Federation of Labor has condemned the measure as a death thrust at American living standards.

LITTLE HOPE HELD

The liberal bloc which is fighting for the exemption, however, had little hope of success. The general trend of sentiment appeared to be that all Federal employes should share in the sacrifice.

"I am doubtful whether we shall be able to get a favorable vote on exempting salaries below $2500," said Johnson, who sponsors the amendment.

A graduated reduction of Federal salaries instead of the flat ten per cent slash was proposed by Senator Norris (R.) of Nebraska.

He would exempt all employes receiving $1500 or less. His proposed scale of reductions on other salaries was as follows:

$1500 to $2500, 8 per cent.
$2500 to $4000, 10 per cent.
$4000 to $5500, 15 per cent.
$5000 to $7500, 20 per cent.
Over $7500, 25 per cent.

WOULD SAVE $121,000,000

Norris estimated his plan would bring about the same economy as proposed by the general 10 per cent slash. Treasury experts, however, said it would be considerably less. The 10 per cent slash would save $121,500,000.

"There is something else involved in this question beside economy," Johnson said. "That something is our economic life. It is the right to live as Americans can and ought to live. This government ought not to set the example of depriving those who have little of the little they have."

Controversial debate over the question of restoring the smaller wages has already delayed action on the $238,000,000 economy bill 24 hours.

CHILDREN OF OTHER STARS GUARDED

Ransom Demand Letters to German Actress Bare Plot to Abduct Her Daughter

As the result of mysterious letters threatening death of Maria, the little daughter of Marlene Dietrich, noted film star, husky guards appeared at the side of celebrities.

Protection of residences by private detectives, quietly instituted following the Lindbergh case, was given renewed emphasis by the revelation of the crude yet sinister notes received by Miss Dietrich and Mrs. Egon Muller, wife of a well-to-do German linen importer.

"The entire matter has been placed in the hands of the police and we hope for the peace of mind of all concerned that it will be quickly solved," said Josef von Sternberg, Miss Dietrich's director and spokesman.

NOTES WERE CROSSED

The threats against Miss Dietrich were made public when a note apparently intended for the film star was received by Mrs. Muller and Miss Dietrich in turn received a letter designed for the importer's wife. The sum of $10,000 was demanded of Miss Dietrich and $500 of Mrs. Muller.

Beverly Hills police revealed that Miss Dietrich received the first threatening letter eight weeks ago. This was followed by one that read:

"You've told the police and so we double the price—$20,000 now."

Police left a packet of money on the running board of a car at the designated place, but no one appeared.

STAR IS WORRIED

"The most recent threatening note came to light when a batch of mail that Miss Dietrich had allowed to accumulate was opened," Von Sternberg said.

"Naturally Miss Dietrich is worried, but we are confident that the guard will prevent any harm."

The letter Mrs. Muller received meant for Miss Dietrich was composed of clippings of newspapers and magazines, pasted onto cardboard sheets.

"You, Marlene Dietrich, if you want to save Maria, to be a screen star, pay, and if you don't, she'll be but a loving memory to you. Don't dare to call detectives again. Keep this to yourself.

BODY GUARD FOR CHILD

"Say, what's the big idea! Attention! Is the future of your girl worth it? Wait for new information. $10,000 or pay heavily later on. You'll be sorry. Don't call for detectives or police guard," read the note.

Since the beginning of the threats, Miss Dietrich has had a bodyguard for herself, one for her child, and her director, Josef von Sternberg, has engaged a burly chauffeur to protect him.

WENT ON TRIPS WITH PITMAN, SHE ADMITS

Says He Was a "Vulgar Man," but She Might Have Learned to Love Him "in Filial Way"

New York, June 3 (INS)—The aged Clarence A. Pitnam, nephew of the inventor of shorthand, was "a vulgar man," but Mrs. Louis C. Dixon, his ex-housekeeper, thought she might learn to love him in a "filial way", she testified today in Supreme Court.

That is why she went on numerous trips with him for more than two and a half years, reproaching him every time he tried to enter her bedroom but accepting $300 a month from him to finance her scenario writing, she declared.

She is now suing the 73-year-old suburbanite for $89,000 which she says he agreed to pay her under a life contract.

Pitman, on the other hand, wants the $39,000 he already has paid Mrs. Dixon because, he contends, she never sold scenarios.

Mrs. Dixon, an auburn-haired woman with a drawl, gave the gaunt little shorthand heir credit for absolutely nothing today—not even a pure white night shirt which he wore on the night she contends he first made advances to her.

Arthur M. Meldon, Pitman's attorney, shook his head sympathetically when she said, in answer to his query:

"I don't know how pure is was."

"Not even the benefit of a pure night shirt?" he mocked.

Mrs. Dixon, under cross-examination, admitted Pitman had given her a "gentleman's kiss" twice a day for two weeks after the first Mrs. Pitman's funeral. She said she did not enjoy the osculation but it was not repulsive to her.

Joseph Coviello, 19, was given eight years for a Medford armed robbery, while Joseph Shankman, 17, was sentenced to an indefinite term on this holdup and eight years on another in Everett. His sentences are to run concurrently.

Michael O'Keefe, 27, of Chelsea, pleaded guilty on March 31, 1931, to the Everett holdup and is serving 15 to 25 years. Dist. Atty. Bishop termed him the ringleader of the gang.

Coviello and Shankman were captured in a Lynn lodging house, and, according to police, had an arsenal of guns. Coviello, police say, is on parole from New Jersey State prison and both are under indictment in Suffolk County for robbery.

MUNCIE MAYOR GETS JAIL TERM

Indianapolis, Ind., June 3 (INS)—Mayor George R. Dale of Muncie, Ind., one of the most colorful figures in Hoosier politics, was sentenced to serve 18 months in a Federal prison and was fined $1000 for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law by United States Judge Robert C. Baltzell here today.

Dale was the chief defendant in the so-called Muncie liquor conspiracy case in which he and 10 other Muncie residents, including numerous officials, were convicted by a jury in Federal court here recently.

Judge Baltzell imposed a similar sentence on Frank F. Massey, chief of police of Muncie, and on Corbett Johnson, Muncie bootlegger. The court designated these two men as the pillars of the conspiracy.

Other defendants received sentences ranging from 90 days in jail to a year and a day in prison and a $500 fine.

FINDER OF LINDY BABY BARRED

Bowing to public sentiment in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, appearances of William Allen, Nefinder of the murdered Lindbergh baby, were cancelled today by the Walter L. Main's circus—so far as these two states are concerned.

Announcement of the cancellation was made at Nashua, N. H., by Vernon Reaver, advance agent of the circus, following a ban placed on Allen's act by four cities in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

In Quincy, Brockton and Lowell, in Massachusetts, and at Portsmouth, N. H., the official thumb was turned down on the truck driver, and the revocation of license for the circus—scheduled to show in Brockton today and Quincy tomorrow—was threatened if Allen appeared.

Mayors Thomas J. McGrath of Quincy and Horace Baker of Brockton issued statements declaring that the Negro's appearance would constitute "contemptible commercialism" of the tragedy.

The license commission in Lowell voted to notify operators of the circus that appearance of Allen would not be allowed next Tuesday.

Dry Chief Admits 'Pillbox' in Woburn Has Him Stumped

Maybe you think Prohibition Administrator Joseph S. Lewis Hasn't figured out his next move in the assault on the Woburn "pillbox" hideaway he suspects of being a speakeasy?

Well, you're right.

A reporter from the Boston Evening American scouted Mr. Lewis for the latest strategy today, and found him rather vague.

"Are you going to get your men into the pillbox for a look-see?" he was asked.

"I am a better historian than prognosticator," he answered noncommittally.

He added his men "had been in." It developed he meant in the building, not in the pillbox hideaway.

The building is located on the grounds of the Massachusetts De Greasing Co.

It is barricaded like a machine-gun pillbox in No Man's Land, and Peterson if the dry agents can't get in, plenty of others can.

VIOLENT QUAKE ROCKS WHOLE OF MEXICO

By ARTHUR CONSTANTINE
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Mexico City, June 3—Thousands of persons rushed from their homes in panic when the most violent earthquake ever recorded locally shook Mexico City for more than 20 minutes today.

The biggest building in the capital rocked, swayed, rattled and quivered and street pavements were cracked in hundreds of places by the quake, whose epicenter was believed to be in the State of Oaxaca.

The earthquake had four distinct phases. The first figuratively seized the city by the scruff of its neck and shook it for fully two minutes.

The second phase was less violent, but the sidewalks rolled beneath the feet of pedestrians, making them walk like intoxicated persons. The third phase was a prolonged tremor and the fourth again swayed the city.

The city of San Jeronimo in the State of Oaxaca reported violent quakes there, beginning at 10:03 last night. No tremors were felt in Mexico City, however, until early today.

London, June 3 (INS)—An extremely violent earthquake was recorded on seismographs in London, Kew and West Bromwich from 7:45 to 8:30 a. m., E. D. T. today.

At one time during the disturbance the needle on the Kew observatory seismograph oscillated 12 inches. Experts are attempting to locate the focal point of the quake.

Washington, June 3 (AP)—An earthquake, described as the most violent registered here in years, was recorded today on the seismograph at Georgetown University at 5:42:30 a. m., E. S. T. and continued for two hours. It was estimated at approximately 2200 miles southwest of Washington.

Most Severe Quake Ever Felt at Fordham

New York, June 3 (INS)—The most severe earthquake shocks ever recorded at Fordham University Observatory were registered there at 5:43:40 a. m. and 5:49:46 a. m. (E. S. T.) today.

Father Lynch determined that the shocks, apparently proceeding from the same source as those felt at observations in London and Mexico City, came from a point about 2600 miles away in the direction of the Caribbean Sea or the Gulf of Mexico.

Most Violent Ever Felt by Harvard Seismograph

At 6:45 o'clock this morning, the new Harvard seismograph recorded the most violent shocks it has registered in the three years it has been in use.

Scientists of the university said the evidence of the disturbances continued throughout the forenoon.

At noon they estimated the rumbling was somewhere in Mexico.

of outlaw mobs that showed a chain of crime stretching across the country.

As a result five of these secret agents are operating now in four large cities, including Boston, gathering information on gang methods. Their results will be tied in with those of the other field forces, of which I will tell you more later.

Gigantic Move to Wipe Out Entire Gang World

After I tell you what the government agents are doing, I am going to reveal what they are finding out. I am going to bare the whole amazing, dazzling, shameful story of crime in America.

The Federal men are not after individual crimesters this time. They are out to obliterate the whole structure of organized gangster, mob-method crime.

My aim is similar—to show what the crime system is. How it operates. How the rackets are co-ordinated. How the victims are picked. The almost unbelievable ramifications of the superstructure of gangdom vulturism.

The whole broad picture of the crime world that lies behind the petty bootlegger. That lies in the hands of the underworld Caesars of our great cities.

For there is a Caesar ruling the rackets of every city.

These things and others these pages will lay bare.

You may want to know what lies in the background of these sporadic outbursts like the Gustin gang murders.

Gang Alliances and Deals to Be Exposed

You may want to know why a racketeer from another city is "fingered" or "put on the spot" and slain, while another slips into Boston, operates unmolested and leaves with his loot.

I shall tell you.

You may want to know how liquor and other rackets dovetail. Read it in these pages.

As the government investigators are out to SMASH the SYSTEM, I intend to show you what that system is.

To throw the spotlight full upon it.

Because I have "got the goods!"

In all its amazing boldness, in all its incredible vastness, in all its vulturous greed, I will "finger" this mob system, these gang methods, this crime world for you.

He was again a special correspondent in China in 1915 for the Chicago Tribune and he represented the Times in Berlin during 1916 and 1917.

Ban on Cupid at Annapolis Stirs Congresswomen

Washington, June 3 (INS)—The Navy's two-year moratorium on marriages for Annapolis graduates brought forth critical comment today in the "feminine bloc" of the House.

Always friendly to Dan Cupid, the women members decided that perhaps bureaucracy was going too far.

The issue was precipitated when Representative Cochran (D.) of Missouri introduced a bill to set aside the Navy ruling and prohibit a similar ruling being applied to West Point cadets.

Mrs. Mary T. Norton (D.) of New Jersey, unofficial "mayor" of Washington as chairman of the District of Columbia committee, was outspoken in her opposition.

"It seems it is an interference in personal affairs," she said. "The question might well be decided by the young people and their parents."

Mrs. Florence Kahn (R.) of California, a proud grandmother, admitted there may be two sides to the question. She wants to know the reasons for the ruling.

SPITALE SEIZED IN BROADWAY SPEAKEASY

New York, June 3 (INS)—In a mysterious surprise raid that left Broadway gasping, Salvatore Spitale, underworld intermediary in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, was seized by detectives and taken to a police station for questioning.

One woman and five other men found with Spitale in a Times sq. speakeasy were also detained.

NO FORMAL CHARGE

Spitale was taken into custody only a few hours after he testified before the Bronx County grand jury of his attempts to regain the stolen Lindbergh baby after Col. Charles A. Lindbergh appointed him one of two underworld emissaries to negotiate with the abductors.

A pistol was found on Spitale when he was searched, but with it he had a permit signed by County Judge William E. Thorpe, Greene County.

No formal charge was lodged against either Spitale or the others rounded up, but police planned to hook them later and send them to the police line-up at police headquarters.

RACE POOL OPERATOR

Along Broadway, several reports as to the detention were current, however. Spitale was said to be a silent partner of Vannie Higgins, reputed Brooklyn beer baron, linked with the recent importation of beer to speakeasies in Greenwich Village. Another was that Spitale was the real "big shot" back of the race track pool raided recently.

Over the long distance telephone from Cairo, N. Y., Judge Thorpe said the pistol permit was issued to Spitale after a letter from Police Commissioner Mulrooney gave "Spitale a clean bill of health."

Anybody Order Load of Furniture From Lynchburg, Va.?

If the Boston party who ordered a load of furniture from a firm in Lynchburg, Va., will call at station 17 and identify himself, he may get delivery.

Robert Brown of Lynchburg drove the furniture up to the station this morning and asked for counsel and help.

He and another driver left Virginia May 31 on the way to Boston. The other man had the address of delivery. But he vanished in New York, and Brown is practically at his wits' end.

Maine Man Sets Fire Under Horse

Bangor, Me., June 3 (INS)—Harris Holyoke, Brewer farmer, today was arraigned in Bangor Municipal Court charged with setting fire under a balky horse "to make him go." The horse was badly burned.

REPORT CURTIS TO REPUDIATE CONFESSION

Flemington, N. J., June 3 (AP)—W. C. Pender, Richmond (Va.) attorney, arrived here today and went to jail to see John Hughes Curtis of Norfolk, who is to be arraigned tomorrow on a charge of having perpetrated a gigantic hoax on the Lindberghs and police seeking capture of the kidnap-murderers of the Lindbergh baby.

Because of Curtis' confession of the hoax, it had been generally believed that at the arraignment tomorrow he would plead nolo and throw himself on the mercy of the court.

After Pender's arrival today, however, it was learned there were certain indications a plea of not guilty might be entered. There were even rumors, which could not be confirmed, that Curtis would repudiate his confession.

Lindbergh Insisted on Paying Ransom, Says Jafsie

Springfield, June 3 (AP)—Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon, who handed over the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom money to the mysterious "John," did so against his better judgment and only upon the insistance of Col. Lindbergh, he told the representatives of a local newspaper during his recent eight days' stay in Becket. This statement was contained in an article published today, based on interviews at the Becket camp.

Condon is quoted as saying that he remonstrated with Lindbergh, on the night when they kept the tryst, against the payment except on the basis of a cash-on-delivery bargain.

But Lindbergh, according to Condon, feared to make the kidnapers angry and insisted that the money be paid to them provided they would assure that the baby would be produced.

"Much against my wishes regarding the payment I entered the cemetery that night and after 'John' had refused to produce the child, I struck a bargain for $50,000, returning $20,000 to Col. Lindbergh. I came away feeling that I had performed a duty of the highest type," said Dr. Condon.

Bouisson Re-Elected

Paris, June 3 (AP)—Fernand Bouisson, five years president of the chamber of deputies, today was re-elected.

THE OLD IS MADE LIKE NEW AT MUSEUM

As good as new, although thousands of years old. This is the after-scene following a scientific cleaning and replacement of original tints and colors.

From ancient cities to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts come rare objects of art. Many are rusted and bent from centuries in the earth. They are taken into the laboratory where an electro-reaction bath clears the surface. Soon a cleaned bit of art is before you. W. J. Young is shown at the machine which restores the article to its original state.

ANCIENT ART RESTORED

Through scientific cleaning and restoration, rare objects of ancient art which would otherwise have been practically lost to the world have been added to the collections of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. Many were recovered from the tombs of Egypt by the Harvard University-Museum of Fine Arts Expedition which has been excavating at Giza and in the Sudan during the past 20 years.

The most recent work thus to undergo transformation is a silver goblet found among the fallen stones of a pyramid at Meroe in the Sudan.

The design was practically obliterated by encrustation, but by repeated subjections to the electro-reaction bath the surface was cleaned, and with the disintegration of the salts, the metal returned to place. The goblet is of Greek workmanship and bears a strong resemblance to the Boscoreale cups, made in Alexandria in the first century A. D.

The cleaning and restoring in the Boston Museum is in charge of W. J. Young, who has accomplished interesting results with Indian, Chinese, Egyptian, and other objects.

Majority of Ballots to Coolidge "Wet"

Senator Coolidge has received more than 10,000 postcard ballots from his constituents registering their opinion on the prohibition problem, the National Liberal Alliance announced today.

The alliance stated the votes had not yet been tabulated, but quoted Senator Coolidge as saying the feeling among most members of Congress is that the majority of those participating in this straw vote are opposed to prohibition.

King Zog in Best of Health, Says Albania

Take Fish Hook From Boy's Eye

AUTO CHAMPION ESCAPES DEATH

Brooklands, Eng., June 3 (AP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell, competing in a 1000-mile automobile race, had a narrow escape from death today.

"That was a jolly close shave," he said, "I almost turned over."

Painters Gamble With Death on Sun's Heat; One Loses

Wilmington, Del., June 3 (AP)—Two painters, Edward Newton, 38, and Ernest Howard, 36, gambled their lives against the sun, and Howard lost.

They knew that heat would liberate noxious fumes from the paint used to coat the interior of a 100,000-gallon water tank in Newport, but began the work early yesterday while the sun still was low.

Starting with the floor, 120 feet below the tank's rim, they had worked but a short while when Howard shook his head, staggered toward the ladder and collapsed.

Newton rushed to assist him, but himself felt faint and started up the steps, while the fumes grew stronger as the sun climbed. Stopping to rest at various levels—almost overcome at times—Newton finally completed the ascent after a nine-hour struggle.

Firemen later donned masks to recover the body of his companion.

RUMOR GERMAN KING TO RETURN

Berlin, June 3 (INS)—Widespread rumors that Germany's present "government of aristocrats" is merely a stepping-stone to a monarchial restoration with the former crown prince on the throne at Potsdam as prince regent caused a flurry of excitement today.

The rumors were quickly denied, but speculation over Germany's future as the result of President Von Hindenburg's dictatorial dismissal of former Chancellor Heinrich Bruening continued undiminished.

2 Wives Claim Body of Baron Taken Ill in Alimony Jail

New York, June 3 (INS)—Just as her love triumphed over her rival in life, so the wealth and status of the second Baroness Guido Von Steer triumphed today in death.

It was at her command that the dead Austrian aristocrat's body, clad in faultless full dress, lay in an Elmhurst undertaking establishment and was to be cremated today.

The baron's first wife, Johanna, claimed the body after Von Steer died in a hospital to which he was removed from a cell in an alimony jail where he was incarcerated since March because he failed to pay Johanna $20 a week alimony.

But in death the woman who never recognized the Mexican decree he obtained near his marriage to the Baroness Katherine forgave him and made a last pitiful gesture of friendliness.

Even had her claims been recognized, her poverty would have made the gesture a futile one.

Baroness Katherine was ill today but hoped to be able to attend the cremation ceremonies.

Married to the man who once was secretary to the Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria, she lived in titled luxury. After he deserted her, she was plunged into abject poverty.

AMELIA MEETS HER HUSBAND

Cherbourg, France, June 3 (AP)—Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, ocean flier, arrived from England today and met her husband, George Palmer Putnam, American publisher, who came from New York on the liner Olympic.

Mrs. Putnam crossed the English Channel from Southampton in the sumptuous motor yacht Evanda, owned by C. R. Fairey, president of the Royal Aeronautical Society, and arrived at Cherbourg harbor to find that the Olympic had been delayed.

Mrs. Putnam was later greeted at the Maritime Station by the mayor.

"I flew the Atlantic because I thought it was time some woman should do it," she told the mayor.

Scouts to Hear Fish

Nudists Disport in Haunts of Old Rip Van Winkle

Camp Olympia, N. Y., June 3 (AP)—Nudism has come to the foothills of the Catskills, where Rip Van Winkle had his peaceful 20-year siesta.

Here, on a 400-acre estate nine miles west of the Hudson river at Highland, N. Y., men, women and children are sun-bathing, swimming, fishing and playing.

The camp, operated by the Olympian League, which heretofore has confined its activities to the dissemination of nudist propaganda, was opened a few weeks ago. It is the first in New York State and has been designed to accommodate 400 guests. The league expects more than 500 to spend vacations in it during July and August.

IN SECLUDED SPOT.

The chief playground for the nudists is a 30-acre, spring-fed lake which abounds in fish. The lake and the major portion of the estate is secluded and the nudists fear no trouble with the law since outsiders would be forced to trespass to enter the estate.

Two sisters, one a writer, the other a well-known artist, are remodeling a barn into a studio in which they plan to spend the summer.

In June there will be opened in connection with the camp a modern nursery school for children from 6 months up. The children, as well as nurses and instructors, said the school's director, "will wear no clothing during the sunny hours of the day."

The camp is not patterned after the famed "nachtkultur" centers of Germany and there are few rules about clothing—they can be worn or taken off, according to the best to bodily comfort, though the guests must be dressed for meals or at any point where they can be seen from the public road.

For a motto the league quotes Columnist Heywood Broun in its literature—"A place where we poor frustrated mortals finally get a chance to do the things that have been so long denied us."

INCOME TAX MILLIONS BEING SQUANDERED IN MASSACHUSETTS

"Windfall" Leads Cities, Towns to Extravagance, Says Achin

This is the first in a series of articles discussing the evils, hazards and injustice of the State and Federal tax systems and showing their unpopularity.

Millions of dollars in income taxes collected annually by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts are wantonly wasted by cities and towns throughout the State, according to charges made today by Representative Henry Achin, Jr., Republican, of Lowell.

HENRY ACHIN, JR.

Representative Achin is so opposed to the State income tax that he filed a bill in 1930 for its repeal. His measure which was unsuccessful, sought repeal of the tax on all professional, trade, employment and business incomes.

Achin denounced the income tax before the legislative committee on taxation at the time and was just as vehement in views expressed to the Boston Evening American today.

He says that the millions taken from business and from the pockets of professional folk and wage earners and appropriated in generous slices to the support of the various cities and towns, are looked upon as a "windfall," by local officials who squander it on extravagant undertakings which they would never dream of if such funds were not available.

LOOKED ON AS "WINDFALL"

He says such a condition breeds waste on the part of local governments which should be compelled to support themselves. It results in an abuse of money wrung largely from toilers, many of whom can ill-afford the tax.

"In 1916 the principal reason advanced for the passage of the income tax law," said Representative Achin, "was that it would relieve the tax burden on real estate. This new tax idea was fine theory in 1916, but since that time the taxpayers have learned, through actual experience, that their real estate tax burdens, instead of being relieved, have mounted nearly 50 per cent, with the income tax bill on top of it all.

SPENT ON EXTRAVAGANCES

"The money raised through the medium of the income tax, after supporting cities and towns of the Commonwealth, which generally look upon this money as a 'wind-fall,' a 'nestegg,' a plum or Christmas gift, in many instances is spent on supplementary budgets or other extravagances which the local officials would not dare undertake if the money had to be raised direct through local channels.

"In my opinion the raising of money in the name of the State for the various municipalities of the Commonwealth, is wrong in principle.

"Each local community should administer itself within its own levy. A high local tax rate indicates to the public that there is something wrong at city or town hall, and, usually awakens the people to a greater interest in their local government.

THE BEST PRESCRIPTION

"Once awakened, the citizens can prescribe the proper remedy to spendthrift officials on the next election day.

"The question will naturally arise as to what will replace the money now received through a tax on wages, salaries and business.

"My answer is less spending of public money. If State, city and town officials do not have the money they will be unable to spend it.

"The best prescription to revive our sickly industries is tax reduction, and the very best invitation to extend to outside industries to locate in Massachusetts is the assurance that we have started tax reduction."

Representative Achin knows what he is talking about. He has made a close study of taxation. As a legislator of more than 20 years continuous service, he is familiar with changing needs and conditions. Achin and his colleague, Representative Victor F. Jewett, share the distinction of being the oldest members in the lower branch of the Legislature, from point of service.

CALLED "HEAVENLY TWINS"

They have been successively elected to the House of Representative from the 14th Middlesex district since 1912, which means that they are now serving their 22nd year.

The late James Hearn of Lowell christened them the "Heavenly Twins," and the name has stuck to them. They conducted a joint campaign in their first race for the House and have been inseparable ever since in everything but wedlock. Representative Jewett is a bachelor. Representative Achin is the daddy of four boys.

Representative Achin's stand on the income tax law showed him to be an official of vision and courage. He says abolition of this tax would prove a distinct benefit.

"RACKET," DECLARES HEARST

William Randolph Hearst, in a signed editorial published in the Boston Evening American and other Hearst newspapers throughout the country, in March, wrote in part as follows:

"The income tax system becomes the greatest racket in the United States and the government the biggest racketeer.

"The system is in itself unjust, inequitable and un-American.

"It paralyzes enterprise and penalizes honesty.

"The rich evade the tax, the poor escape it and practically the whole burden of oppressive taxation is borne by the worthy middle classes.

"The tax system has made bullies out of government agents and a blackmailer out of the government itself.

"Do the workers benefit by this discriminatory income tax?

"Only if the workers benefit by financial depression, social disorganization, business stagnation, currency deflation, the diminution of consumption and the consequent decline of production and employment."

Another installment in the state and federal income tax expose will be published in the Boston Evening American tomorrow.

QUIZ BROTHER IN LOVE TRAGEDY

London, June 3 (AP)—Francis Richard Stephen, a solicitor and brother of Thomas William Scott Stephen, who was fatally shot earlier this week in the West End flat of Mrs. Elvira Dolores Barney, daughter of a wealthy knight, testified at the inquest today he thought his brother and Mrs. Barney occupied the apartment together.

He said his brother had denied this, however.

The last time he saw his brother, he said, it was about the question of his association with Mrs. Barney.

"I asked him and Mrs. Barney to come to my office and told them father did not approve of their association," he said.

"My brother was very angry and I asked him to leave my office.

"They gave me the impression they would be married when she got her divorce, but I pointed out this was not the best way of settling it."

DANNY-THE-STRONG FINDS PACT IS OUT

Bluecoat at Door Threatens Armistice in Liquor Racket

By THE MASKED REPORTER

(Copyright, 1932, by the Boston Evening American. All rights reserved.)

Today being a good day for it, you may as well know about Danny-the-Strong-Arm in this matter of the rum-running blings in Div. 4—or "Why Jerry Jested."

Masked Reporter

The place was empty as a dead man's derby when I did the walk-in today on Dan the Philosopher, and there wasn't even a cuff in the house.

"Well, Dan," I said, "has the armistice been signed?"

"Not yet," said Dan the Philosopher, coming out of his reverie and making a couple of automatic swipes along the bar with his rag, "but I do hear that some of the hostiles have turned chumps. They tell me they'll next be buying a round table and calling themselves the Little League of Nations. It's the best I've heard today.

"On the way in this morning," said Dan the Philosopher, "instead of reading my paper, one of the kid coppers got on my car and he gave me as good a laugh as I expect to have at this time of the day. Will you have a taste, by the way?

"This laugh," continued Dan the Philosopher, "was on an Exeter st. hostile—you know, Danny-the-Strong-Arm? He's beginning to believe in himself, he is.

OVER TO JERRY'S

"Just when business starts to pick up, Danny-the-Strong-Arm turns chilly at the sight of a bluecoat in front of his joint, putting the collar on the cash customers. So he goes down and puts some words on the bluecoat and the bluecoat tells him, 'I got my assignment, feller. Don't tell me my business.'

"'Well, I don't care whether you got your assignment or not; I got my agreement,' says Danny-the-Strong-Arm. 'We're all right till Monday.'

"'Okey to you—but nuts just the same' says the bluecoat, 'Jerry the Skipper tells me what to do, not you.'

"So Danny-the-Strong-Arm," said Dan the Philosopher, "throws it into high and whizzes over to Lagrange st. to Jerry's den and he puts it right up to Jerry. 'You got me worried,' he says to Jerry, 'because ain't I going to fold up on Armistice Day, June the 6th, according to the agreement?'

"'So what?' says Jerry the Skipper. 'I don't give a hang whether you fold up today, tomorrow or Armistice Day. You got no license to operate on this division and any agreement you make anywhere don't hold water with me.

LISTEN AND LIKE IT

"'You and nobody else can operate with my permission or anybody's permission and I'm the boss of this division and not only the captain at Lagrange st. station but the captain of my soul. Your agreement don't hold in my supreme court or any supreme court—and you can listen to that and like it.

"'There's laws for one no more than there's laws for all,' says Jerry the Skipper, 'and while I didn't write them I can read them without this Braille system. And don't come in here with your agreements any more or I'll throw you and your agreements over the garden wall.'

"The Skipper said that?" I remarked to Dan the Philosopher.

"The Skipper said that."

"And is that all for today?" said I.

"Not a bit," he says, "if you're still interested. It's something I didn't see myself, but I got it from one of them good authorities, and it's the second best giggle of the day.

PULLS A FAST ONE

"Nicky, not Arnold, from the Fayette Gardens—and a better boy you wouldn't find even if you wanted to—pulled a fast one on the Five-and-Ten Wednesday. I don't mean the store, as you well know, my lad.

"It seems they got a ticket for his joint and a Fed, standing in a doorway saw the rusher come out with the gallon of alk and take a walk for himself five minutes before the Five-and-Ten wheels along in his car and steps to the curb.

"The Five-and-Ten tears into Nicky's, and puts a peek but finds nothing and has to be content to go away again. Well, five minutes after the Five-and-Ten wheels around the corner with a heavy sixth, the rusher finishes his walk with the gallon of alk and escorts it back like a gentleman into the Fayette Gardens. If that ain't a laugh, my lad, it'll do till a laugh comes along."

"It's a laugh," said I.

"Have a nip," said Dan the Philosopher, "against the day when we get this prohibition onto this country."

Girl Wins Latin Contest

In a Latin contest open only to Boston University's College of Liberal Arts freshmen, M. Katherine Fraleigh has been named winner.

CHICAGO'S PLEA URGES ACTION

Washington, June 3 (INS)—Prompt passage of a measure empowering the federal government to loan up to $300,000,000 to states and municipalities that confess themselves unable to meet their own relief problems appeared a possibility today, as the direct outgrowth of the serious situation in Chicago.

Chicago bankers telephoned President Hoover urging immediate federal action to make loans available. They reported that more than 100,000 families and some 600,000 people were facing starvation through the closing of the public relief agencies in Chicago for lack of funds.

President Hoover would make no comment on the Chicago appeal, but he sent for Senators Glenn and Lewis and asked them to "sound out" their colleagues on the prospects of an emergency authorization law that would permit the federal government to loan money to states and municipalities.

WINCHESTER TO VOTE PAY CUT

A special town meeting in Winchester has been called for next week to appropriate money to provide work for almost 400 unemployed residents, and to decide the question of wage reductions for town employes.

In its report to the annual town meeting in March the finance committee recommended a slash in salaries in the event it proved necessary to appropriate additional sums.

According to a statement by the finance committee today, the amount needed is between $30,000 and $35,000.

Jury Awards $7500 for Auto Injuries

DOVE FLUTTERS AS TAX BILL ROW OPENS

A dove fluttered into the rotunda of the State House today as angry legislators went into the final round of the bitter fight over the new taxation bills.

Somebody said it was an omen. Somebody else pointed out the dove was the wrong color for a bird of peace.

Just then a man in a black coat leaped up and shouted that the bird wasn't even "house-broken" and called for the military to put it out.

Representative Pratt of Saugus opened the proceedings.

He asked that the Pratt-Goodwin bill be substituted for the one reported out by the ways and means committee.

The Pratt-Goodwin bill was tentatively turned down yesterday, and its opponents supposed they had heard the last of it.

The outstanding feature of the measure is that it provides for taxation of securities hitherto tax exempt and hoarded by certain investors.

The bill for which Pratt sought to substitute his own is practically the one fostered by Gov. Ely, save that the House ways and means committee eliminated the one-cent gasoline tax.

It provides for a ten per cent increase in income, corporation and public service taxes; a 5 to 8 per cent cut in salaries of state employes, and the transfer of $2,000,000 from the highway fund to welfare departments of cities and towns.

ROOSEVELT IN A SHARP REPLY TO SEABURY

Albany, June 3 (INS)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt issued a sharp statement today declaring it to be the duty of the Hofstadter committee to present the evidence against Mayor James J. Walker to the Governor if the evidence "warrants" such action.

Roosevelt declared it is time for the committee to "stop talking and do something."

"It is not the time for political sniping or buck passing," the Governor asserted.

The Governor's reference to "buck passing" was interpreted at the capitol as a direct slap at Samuel Seabury, counsel to the Hofstadter committee, for the latter's insinuation that Roosevelt should take the initiative and request a copy of the evidence concerning Mayor Walker.

"It is the duty of the legislative committee and its counsel, if they believe they have sufficient cause, to present evidence to the proper authorities without waiting to make formal report to next year's legislature," Roosevelt declared.

HENRY FORD ON FARM AND FACTORY

DANGER to our country is to be apprehended not so much from the influence of new things as from our forgetting the value of old things. At present, much that is blamed on the new thing—the machine—should perhaps be blamed on our forgetting what we had before the machine came, namely, the land. The two belong together; they cannot live apart; there is no antagonism between them; they must be reunited.

I do not look for less but more use of machinery. If the world is to have even a minimum supply of goods, it must utilize the machine. The people will never willingly forego the help which the machine gives them in their work.

Besides, machinery makes more jobs. It enables every one to enjoy inexpensively the comforts and conveniences of modern living conditions. As for overproduction, we have never yet had a sufficient production of all the things which the family needs. It would be splendid if the world should seriously attempt to overproduce everything that everybody needs! We should then discover that our present machine facilities could not even catch up with the need. Give the world a money system that makes it easier for goods to flow from man to man, and all the factories on earth could not begin to supply a tenth of the demand.

But it is possible to expect of the machine more than it can do. We cannot eat or wear machines. If the world were one vast machine shop, it would die. When it comes to sustaining life, we go to the fields. The machine may help us plant, cultivate, harvest, grind and bake the grain for bread. The machine may weave and cut and sew for clothing. The machine may transport these necessities for our use. In doing so, it serves in partnership with the land. And it is that relation and balance which I am urging upon our people today.

Ten years ago we started seven village industries on small water power sites, all within twenty miles of Dearborn, our purpose being to combine the advantages of city wages with country living. The experiment has been a continuous success. Overhead cost has been less than that in the big factory, and the workers would not hear of going back to the city shops. As they are free to till land in the growing season, throughout these trying times they have all remained self-sustaining. Their security is produced by machine and farm, not by one alone.

While this experiment has fully justified itself, I have felt that it is only a step in the right direction. Excellent as village industries are, they do not really bring industry and agriculture together. For a long time now I have believed that industry and agriculture are natural partners and that they should begin to recognize and practice their partnership. Each of them is suffering from ailments which the other can cure. Agriculture needs a wider and steadier market; industrial workers need more and steadier jobs. Can each be made to supply what the other needs? I think so.

The link between is Chemistry. In the vicinity of Dearborn we are farming twenty thousand acres for everything from sunflowers to soy beans. We pass the crops through our laboratory to learn how they may be used in the manufacture of motor cars and thus provide an industrial market for the farmers' products. I foresee the time when industry shall no longer denude the forests which require generations to mature, nor use up the mines which were ages in the making, but shall draw its raw material largely from the annual produce of the fields. The dinner table of the world is not a sufficient outlet for the farmer's products; there must be found a wider market if agriculture is to be all that it is competent to become. And where is that market to be found if not in industry?

I am convinced that we shall be able to get out of yearly crops most of the basic materials which we now get from forest and mine. That is to say, we shall grow annually many if not most of the substances needed in manufacturing. When that day comes, and it is surely on the way, the farmer will not lack a market and the worker will not lack a job. More people will live in the country. The present unnatural condition will be naturally balanced again. Our foundations will be once more securely laid in the land.

WE ARE still in the early stage of world-making. To stabilize conditions at a given point or to reject progress because it brings problems with it, is impossible. We need to plan how to pass through necessary changes with the least human hardship. Economic changes must come and it is possible for men to be in a position to welcome rather than dread them. With factory and farm as partners, with one foot on the soil and one foot planted on industry, we should be in a position to hail the new epoch without fear. The land would protect us from needless anxiety.

The day of small industry near the farm will return, because much of the material grown for industry can be given its first processing by the men who raised it. The master farmer will become, as he was in former years, master of a form of industry besides.

An old Roman said that corn was never so plentiful in Rome as when the men who ruled the state were those who also tilled the field. It will be so with our people when those who fabricate the utilities of the world are those who raise the raw material from the field.

One thing is certain—we must go on—present conditions cannot be stabilized—life goes on. I suppose that in 1632 there were people who urged that the world had gone far enough and that it should be halted and hardened into the pattern of 1632. And again in 1732, others thought that a line should be drawn and conditions stabilized. In 1832 the same proposal—it is always made—every generation makes it. Suppose the world had halted at any of those dates! Are we to declare that 1932 is the date at which development must cease and the world be stabilized just as it is? It cannot be done. Life would burst any barriers we might raise against its ongoing. We do not yet control all the materials out of which to assemble a world that is worthy to endure unchanged. Our times are primitive. True progress is yet to come. The industrial age has scarcely dawned as yet; we see only its first crude beginnings.

We are pioneers, and pioneering has its hardships. This generation is composed of economic pilgrims, passing out of less desirable conditions into what we hope shall be more desirable ones. That is the meaning of these times. We are not going back, and false prosperity is not soon coming back. It would be well to interpret present conditions in this light and help each other in the good old pioneer way, as we pass through them. We are going to renew our stake in the land; for the land is the foundation of the economic security which we seek.

YOUTH DIES IN VOLCANO WITH SLAIN GIRL

Hilo, Hawaii, June 3 (AP) Pele, dreaded fire goddess of Hawaiians, has claimed a human sacrifice of love and despair in her traditional home—the lava-filled firepit of Halemumau.

Clasping in his arms the body of the girl who had spurned his love, William Nunes, a young Portuguese, leaped into the deep pit of the world's largest active vocano. He apparently had slain the girl, Margaret Enos, before hurling himself into the lava-filled crater, where some believe the ancient Hawaiians offered human sacrifices to appease Pele's wrath.

Two days ago the high school girl refused Nunes' offer of marriage. The rejected suitor kidnaped Miss Enos from the home of her sister, Mrs. Manuel Furtado, shooting the sister in the hand when she tried to stop him.

As authorities reconstructed the tragedy, the 20-year-old youth drove the brink of Halemumau, pleading with the girl to reconsider his proposal. Failing, yet wishing to spare his sweetheart the death he had chosen for himself, Nunes shot and killed the 16 year-old girl before making his dramatic leap.

His blood-stained automobile was found on the brink of the fire pit. In it lay an automatic pistol and a note.

"Ten minutes to eight," the note read. "Margaret died instantly. She did not suffer. And now I must pay."

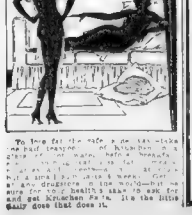
"Worth It," Miss Bates Says

If you're young and fat read what Miss Bates of Beech Iowa has to say. She's in school—has a date tonight—knows she has a future to the SAFE way.

"I took one bottle of Kruschen Salts a month for five months. It amounted to $4.25 and I reduced 65 lbs, but it was worth it. Imagine just 22 years old and weighing what I did. I could not enjoy myself as other girls did. I could not get the clothes I wanted. I think it is wonderful the results Kruschen Salts give."



To lose fat the safe, easy, delightful way just take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning. Don't diet on foods you like but ask your druggist for a bottle of Kruschen Salts (enough for four weeks) which costs but a few cents and get Kruschen Salts. It's the little daily dose that does it.

FASTER PLANE FOR HAWKS

New York, June 3 (AP)—Capt. Frank M. Hawks, still in a Boston hospital recovering from a crash in April, will soon be in the air again and this time in even a faster plane than the one in which he established innumerable speed records.

W. S. S. Rodgers, vice-president of the Texas Co., for which Hawks is technical adviser, announced today that a new plane was being built for the injured aviator.

The plane, which Capt. Hawks will take delivery on in September, is of transport type and will be powered with a newly developed engine of 14 cylinders. It will have a cruising range of more than 2500 miles at a speed of more than 200 miles an hour.

Dispute Over Shirt Wins Brookline Man Divorce

She wouldn't wash his shirt, when they lived together in something rather less than wedded bliss. But when he called on her at her new flat in Newbury st., he found her washing the shirt of another man.

That was one of several grievances recited today by Frank E. Flaxington of Brookline before he got his decree nisi from Mattie A. Flaxington, now of Boston.

The bill was granted by Judge W. Poland in the uncontested divorce session of Suffolk probate court.

The Flaxingtons were married in 1918. She left him in 1928. He said the Newbury st. incident occurred on May 18. The man wanted to oust him, but his wife prevented it.

HEARST AMONG AIR FAVORITES

Mr. Hearst will be heard in Boston and other New England cities over WEEI at 10:45 Eastern daylight time tonight.

New York, June 3 (AP)—Records of mail commending or criticizing his remarks or requesting copies of his broadcast indicate that William Randolph Hearst is one of the most popular of non-professional broadcasters.

The latest response to his infrequent appearances on the air is larger than that of most of the national notables who appear before the microphones.

The National Broadcasting Co. mail department which handles 5,000,000 letters a year from listeners, expects a heavy influx of mail after Mr. Hearst's broadcast tonight at 10:45 Eastern Daylight saving time, on "Painful and Painless Taxation."

The publisher will speak from Los Angeles on a coast-to-coast NBC network for 15 minutes. He will be heard in the East and Midwest through the WEAF red network.

The interest in Mr. Hearst's views abroad is indicated by requests from foreign papers for advance copies of his address.

WETS IN BOTH PARTIES SEE VICTORY

By LOUIS SEIBOLD

New York, June 3 (US)—While President Hoover and Democratic dry "chiselers" are planning starchless prohibition planks for their respective party conventions, the wet factions in both are confident of ultimate victory.

A check of the delegates who will decide the matter in the two conventions indicates there will be 633 Republican wets of the 1154 and approximately 732 of the same number of Democratic arbiters.

REPUBLICANS DIVIDED

The outlook for the wet Democrats is more favorable than that of undry Republicans. The reason is that the Republicans are more widely divided over the forms of prohibition declarations.

Democratic opinion seems to center around two planks. The first is for outright repeal, the second for resubmission.

Between the two, the majority of delegates from 28 of the 48 states favor the resubmission idea. Most of the support for outright repeal comes from the largest and most populous sections in the East and Middle West.

AGREE ON ONE POINT

Wet leaders in both parties agree on one point. They predict they will have a majority of the delegates from the 24 states including:

TECH EXPERTS TO RECONCILE SCIENCE KINGS

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL
Science Editor of Universal Service

New York, June 3—A possible reconciliation between Dr. Albert Einstein's theory of relativity and Dr. Heisenberg's quantum mechanics has been formulated by two Boston scientists.

Drs. N. Rosen and M. S. Vallarta, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, tell in the Physical Review, issued today, how a relativistic quantum mechanics may be possible.

The two great revolutions in the science of physics which this century has seen are relativity and quantum mechanics.

DEALS WITH ATOMS

By quantum mechanics is to be understood the science which deals with atoms and the world of atoms. Electrons, atoms, photons or unit packets of light, do not obey the general mechanical laws of the ordinary large scale world.

Sometimes these things behave as if they were some kind of waves, and at other times they appear as separate particles.

In relativity, however, one deals with large scale problems, and its most important principle is the finite velocity of light; that is light cannot travel faster than its known rate which is always constant.

LINK NOT APPARENT

Now, the relativity principles appear to have no necessary connection with the quantum of substance world. For instance scientists have what they call the uncertainty principle, meaning that the exact position and speed of an electron cannot be determined at the same time.

However, Drs. Rosen and Vallarta propose an experiment which they say will determine or measure the uncertainty itself, thus virtually making the measurements certain with the limits of relativity theory.

Netcher's Ex-Wife Says She Was Woman in Brody Case

By WILLIAM PARKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Paris, June 3 (INS)—Mrs. Constance Reid Netcher, divorced wife of Irving Netcher, millionaire Chicago business man, came forward today with the revelation she was one of the two unnamed American women who recently sent Illes Brody to a British jail on charges of extortion.

The other woman, she said, was her sister, Mrs. Mildred Burke Brody, a former New York free lance writer, was convicted in Old Bailey court, London, after Mrs. Netcher and Mrs. Burke had given evidence against him.

During the entire proceedings their names were kept secret. Identified only as "Mrs. B. and "Mrs. C." they charged that Brody had demanded money from them under threats of discrediting their reputations.

In the cozy atmosphere of the restaudant Auberge Depet de Nonne in the Place de Tarnes district, Mrs. Netcher told the story, disclosing that she is soon to marry a wealthy young Scotchman "who stood by me throughout the trial." She refused to reveal his name.

"My sister, Mrs. Mildred Burke, and I were the unnamed Mrs. B. and Mrs. C. whose testimony sent Brody to Pentonville prison," she said.

"Brody has written me twice from prison." I believe that if he were released he would sign a statement exonerating me."

Mrs. Netcher, whose former husband recently married Rosnika Dolly, dancer, is a strikingly beautiful, petite, brunette. She also disclosed that prior to the Brody trial she was engaged to marry Ian MacGilchrist, whom she described as a "rich young Scot, related to Lord Inverclyde."

"The engagement was broken off by family influence early in the Brody case," she said.

FEAR LIVES LOST IN COUNTRY CLUB FIRE

Possibility that lives may have been lost in a fire which destroyed the Peabody mansion at the exclusive Kernwood Country Club in Salem, today, spurred firemen in feverish search of the ruins.

Although the club was not scheduled to open officially until tomorrow, several members had moved in their belongings, and it was feared one or two might have remained overnight.

The club lists many prominent Boston merchants and Al Jolson, the actor, among its members.

Officials were puzzled as to the cause of the blaze, which did damage estimated at $25,000, and called fire departments from Salem, Danvers and Peabody.

A checkup was being made to determine what members had moved into the mansion, used as a hotel during the summer by the club. It was lavishly furnished and was located 200 yards from the golf clubhouse.

Jack Shea, golf pro at the club, his wife and two children, who live in a cottage near the mansion, were aroused from their sleep and forced to leave their house when sparks landed on the roof.

Charles Becker, chef at the clubhouse, and six other employes were aroused by Shea. They were unable to fight the fire as the mansion was a furnace when they arrived. The fire was discovered by a milkman who was leaving milk at the Shea home.

MAY CONCEAL BODIES OF CLUBMEN

Chimneys and walls stand as mute evidence of what fire did early today to the Peabody Mansion, at the exclusive Kernwood Country Club in Salem. The mansion was used as a hotel by the club. It was not officially scheduled to open until tomorrow, although several members had moved in. Hunt for bodies was made today. (Staff photo.)

"Haven't you noticed it?—they Taste Better"

© 1932, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

THEY'RE MADE of ripe, sweet, mellow tobaccos.

These tobaccos are blended and cross-blended..."welded" together in such a way as to bring out the best in each kind of tobacco.

MAYBE I'M WRONG
(About Hollywood)

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

Hollywood, June 3—It was over at one of the studios. A cameraman and his assistant were having an argument. For two cents, I'd black yer eye" said the cameraman. "Well, for another two cents" said his assistant "I'd punch you in the nose. Just then, the director who had been listening to the argument walked over and said: "Okay, gentlemen, here's a nickel. I want to see you two boys get together."

Momentous Moments

Jimmy Finlayson's girl reveals finally discovered a way to bring that thrifty sweetheart of hers to his knees. She dropped a penny on the floor.

The Crack of the Day

At the Hollywood Junior high school one of the smartest pupils in the 9th A was known film empire who recently split. The teacher was giving an ex amination in grammar and when she asked the kid if he knew the past tense of marry, he said "Sure divorce."

Ten-Second Talkies

Neglected wife: I cook and bake for you, and what do I get? Nothing.

Movie actor: You're lucky. I get indigestion.

Not So Close-ups

An egotistical film star was complaining to a friend of his the other day.

Sime: I wish I had married a better woman, he said. So that I could feel I wasn't good enough for her.

Hollywood divorce figures don't lie. One from one leaves two.

The trouble with a lot of our stars is that they don't know the difference between being kittenish and catty.

The most painful sight in the world is to watch a cross-eyed actor trying one of those one-arm quick rooms.

MONKS ALIVE IS HOPE IN NEW CLUE

Hint that Allan B. Monks, cousin of the late Lester G. Monks of the famous Bram murder case and relative by marriage of the late Mrs. Jack Gardner, may be alive came today as the latest development of police search for Monks in California.

Monks, who has been missing 12 months, and who, it has been learned, was held prisoner in an isolated California cottage part of that time, formerly lived in Marlborough st., Back Bay, and Manchester-by-the-Sea.

Today, in San Diego, Cal., Dist. Atty. Thomas Whalen announced that he has been in telephone communication with the missing man's wife through her attorney, Clarence Moore of San Francisco.

Mrs. Monks, formerly known as the "centerstage queen," is wanted for alleged passing of worthless checks.

Morris also had a telephone conversation with Ed Mayo, a former assembly of California and was asked by the believed Monks to be alive and well.

NATION HONORS KING GEORGE, 67

London, June 3 (INS)—Amid signs of national rejoicing King George today celebrated his 67th birthday.

Royal salutes of 21 guns were fired in London and at all naval and military stations throughout the British Empire, and flags were flown from all public buildings. Ships at all British naval ports were gaily decorated with buntings.

Messages from all over the world poured into Buckingham Palace from heads of many states congratulating the king.

The king and queen motored to Epsom Downs to see the Oaks, a classic known as the "Ladies' Derby," and a birthday luncheon party was planned to be held in the grandstand.

A private dinner party, at which his majesty's family were to offer their congratulations, was scheduled for tonight.

Straw Hats in Novel Shapes

SKETCHED IN PARIS

Two representatives of the advanced midsummer models are in the sketch. The panama hat at the top is of Mado's newest, a soft paper panama whose slightly rolled brim accentuates its tilt. The crown is tucked across its top, from back to front, outlining an incrustation of shining black feathers which terminate above the left ear in a full rosette.

N. Y. Beach Resort Bars Autos, Bikes

Ocean Beach, N. Y., June 3 (AP)—From now until Dec. 1 no one except the refuse collector and the fire department may drive automobiles in this resort village on Fire Island. Furthermore, bicycles are banned.

Elevator Workers in Strike Threat

New York, June 3 (AP)—A general strike of 15,000 elevator constructors against operations of New York elevator manufacturers threatened today.

The 15,000 employes, working throughout the United States and Canada, about 2200 of them being in New York. The strike threat grew out of wage cut proposals.

CAPITAL FEARS GROWING VETS' BONUS ARMY

Washington, June 3 (AP)—A critical situation shaped up today as hundreds more bonus-seeking war veterans poured into the city and had to be quartered shelterless in open fields for lack of billeting space.

To the 600 who have been quartered in vacant buildings for the past few days and the 1,500 or so reported being cared for individually in local churches were added two new delegations that night with more expected by freight train and truck during the day.

Brig. Gen. Glassford, superintendent of police had sought tents from the war department, but met with flat refusal from Secretary Hurley. A crew of carpenters was organized from among the jobless veterans today to build wall-less lumber shelters. Open fields in Anacostia Nearby, and open prairie from New Jersey and Philadelphia now are calling a contingent of the bonus demonstrators were taken to the fields in trucks and police patrol wagons last night to sleep under the stars.

FOOD FUNDS LOW

Funds for feeding the men were low and with thousands of men striving to get here from all quarters of the country the local authorities were desperate.

The objective of the bonus seekers was still distant by this morning, only 113 members of the House had signed the petition—requiring 145 names—through which it is sought to compel a vote on legislation to pay the $2,000 to $50 of bonus principal contained in the Patman bill.

COMMUNIST SPLIT

Reports of communistic influence back of the veterans' march apparently were leading to a split in the invading forces. The 600-strong Pacific coast contingent, which was first in action with Glassford, then would refuse to have anything to do with the Workers' Ex-Service Men's League. Officials of the latter claimed the Communist objective was the mere organization a mass demonstration next Wednesday with no intention of permitting

Movie Unions Back 5 Billion Loan Plan

Los Angeles, June 3—Representatives of 15 unions, with a membership of 5000 men and women employed in the motion picture industry, have gone on record in favor of a $5,000,000,000 public improvement loan bill by Congress.

WORLD PRAYER BEGINS TODAY

Vatican City, June 3 (U.S.)—The eight days of prayer and penance, which Pope Pius XI in his recent encyclical called on the world to observe, began today.

Special prayers have been ordered in Catholic churches throughout the world in addition to the regular annual observance of the feast of the Sacred Heart.

The Osservatore Romano, official Vatican organ, recalled that part of the encyclical in which the Pope asked abstention "even from amusements," so that the money thus saved could be given to the needy.

The Pontiff decreed the eight days of prayer in order that God might save itself from evils threatening.

DR. PETTY, WAR HERO, SUICIDE

Philadelphia, June 3 (AP)—Dr. Orlando H. Petty, one of the only two doctors who had congressional medals of honor was dead today from a pistol shot which detectives were convinced was self-inflicted. He was 58 years old.

With Dr. Joel T. Boone, White House physician, he held the congressional award and in addition had numerous other decorations including the distinguished service cross.

The deed which won him the congressional honor was performed by Dr. Petty on June 11, 1918. Under heavy shell fire he worked in his operating station until it fell in ruins about him. He escaped to a place of safety with a wounded officer on his back.

NEVER A COMPROMISE WITH QUALITY

Books—And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

Knowing, of course, the wide interest there is just now in economic questions, books on every phase of finance are pouring from the publishers' presses. Some of them would seem to have been written—or, rather, dictated—over night. They make unpleasant reading on a summer's day.

Take W. E. Woodward's volume, for instance, called "Money for Tomorrow," brought out by Liveright. He uses as a foreword that poem by James Norman Hall which I quoted in this column immediately after it appeared in the May Atlantic Monthly; and he begins his opening chapter with these cheerful words:

"I hope to God nobody will enjoy reading this book. If you tell me that you enjoyed it, I shall be as depressed as if you had told me that you had a grand time at the sinking of the Titanic."

He sees the financial prophets as men discredited. False hopes were aroused in us all after the cataclysm of October, 1929, when so-called leaders of industrial thought proclaimed loudly that the corner had been turned, and we were again on the road to prosperity.

"One need not be a clairvoyant to detect a sense of foreboding in the American scene; and, indeed, in the whole of our modern life. Our fate, as individuals, is no longer in our hands; distant events and unseen men put us to the heart. The road is long and dreary, but we shall eventually come into the sunlight again. Whenever we do there will be new ideas in our heads and new speech on our tongues."

Mr. Woodward is depressed about our whole condition, and rightly so. And he can give little rapier thrusts which, if his words are read by those he attacks, will make them squirm. Around Christmas time in 1930 he quotes Mr. Roger Babson as saying that 1931 would be a "year of opportunity."

"It was," retorts Mr. Woodward, as in Mayor Walker on the witness stand, "it was an opportunity to go broke."

He is hard on the financial Pollyannas who do not know the difference between true and false values, and if you will take the pains to read the quotations from statements and diaries and letters of those in high places, you will see why Mr. Woodward waxes impatient and even sarcastic and vituperative.

He goes into subjects like price levels and overproduction, salesmanship and profitism and many economics, delusions from which we suffer, real and apparent, wages, foreign trade, and then he speaks some words of truth regarding foreign debts.

He feels that it is absolutely necessary to revise the existing corporation laws, and make other sweeping changes.

And there is "Confessions of a Former Customers' Man," by David L. Salmon, as told to Dr. Edwin F. Bowers (Vanguard Press). Not pleasant reading, either.

Take, for instance, your fledgling investor who does not stop to investigate the channels through which his hard-earned money will be poured. He has been led to believe in first-mortgage real-estate bonds, but here he learns, perhaps for the first time, that such investments may be dangerous.

There is a code of ethics in the business or profession or whatever you wish to call it of a "customers' man." He must make social contacts; and Mr. Salmon tells, with striking candor, of his own beginning in this regard. He was helped along by a young friend he had made, the son of a wealthy "trader," and he leaves nothing unsaid which would throw light on his career.

The itch for easy money is not confined to any one class of people, he says. In his time he tells us that he has handled accounts for men and women of almost every calling and profession. He unblushingly calls this period of his life his "parasitehood."

He tells us that doctors, dentists and ministers are the shinplon suckers' of the world, and then he relates the extraordinary story of a physician who was cured of his love of the stock market only when he was told over the telephone of his incredible losses just as he was about to perform a delicate operation.

But not every one is so easily influenced. The book is written in a chatty, agreeable style—a deft piece of reporting, in which are many unusual stories that hold no little of the glamour of fiction.

So we come to the larger and more imposing and well written volume of Forrest Davis, "What Price Wall Street?" (William Goodwin, Inc.). And instantly the author explains that from time immemorial the trader for profit has rarely been stopped. The money vendors and hucksters who keep shop in Wall Street in this depressed year 1932 inherit the historic aversion to their guild.

Then he proceeds to review periods of our history which knew alarming panics. He shows us again, with the art of a man of letters, the machinations of men like Gould, Fisk, Vanderbilt, Morgan, Harriman, Ryan, et al. In particular he makes dramatic and terse those unforgettable days of 1907 when Morgan at first refused to pull the old Knickerbocker Trust Co. out of its hole, though thousands of men and women depositors stood in line to withdraw their funds.

He bids farewell to the titans and kings of finance who have lorded it so long; and then, as a climax, he gives a picture of our world of finance as it may exist in 1947. Wall Street must go.

"There must be some way out, apart from the terrifying alternatives of anti-social, brutal, unintelligent capitalistic enterprise on the one hand, and the rigidly regimented, illiberal system which the mentors of Soviet Russia have established to cover their own special problem. Have we exhausted the possibilities of democracy? Obviously, we have not."

MISSING FLIERS HUNTED AT SEA

St. John's, N. F., June 3 (AP)—The seas off Groat's Island, N. F., today was the goal of Montreal and Boston airplanes searching for Arthur Sullivan, Newfoundland aviator, and Dr. K. Karl Kushnert, Grenfell mission dental surgeon, missing since they took off for a pleasure flight from St. Anthony, Monday.

Mrs. M. S. Sullivan of St. John's, mother of the missing pilot, planned to go to St. Anthony by airplane to aid in the search.

Plan Plant in Haverhill

Haverhill, June 3—The Style Rite Shoe Company of Boston is to establish a plant here soon. The plant will employ 200.

Dogs Save Teacher's Life as Children Die in Fire

Bigwood, Ont., June 3 (AP)—Two collie dogs with scorched paws received adulations due heroes today. Miss Page, school teacher, lived at the home of Ernest Gauthier, farmer, whose three children died when the dwelling was destroyed by fire. Unable to save the children, Miss Page jumped 14 feet from an upper window, with her clothing burning.

As she lay on the ground with wrenched ankles the dogs, Brule and Prince, rolled her about and scratched out the flames with their paws.

"The dogs saved me," she said.

THIEF TRAPPED BY RADIO CALL

Somerville police, summoned from their cruising car by a radio flash that a Medford at store was being entered by a burglar, converged on the place early today and caught Melvin F. Clark of School st. and placed him under arrest on a charge of breaking, entering and larceny of $10.20 from the store cash drawer.

Police received a telephone call that a man had smashed a cellar window and crawled into the store.

SCHOOL DRILL GOOD CURE FOR MILITARISTIC SPIRIT IN BOYS

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

TODAY BELONGS TO THE BOYS of the school regiments and to the girls who line the streets with their colored banners and ticklers, waiting to cheer their pet platoons. A week ago I warned the members of my university extension class, which meets of a Friday morning, that they will do well to be up betimes if they expect to reach the State House at all. On these occasions the zeal and the efficiency of the police is such that it is virtually impossible to get anywhere, from anywhere to anywhere, without heart-breaking detours.

PROF. ROGERS

This applies only if you are on foot. If you are in a car and are trying to get say, to the State House from Cambridge, you might as well give it up as a bad job and go and pick daisies in the country. That, unfortunately, is a poor counsel of perfection if you have a few hundred people waiting for the last class of the term, so it's best to get up early, before the boys begin to form, and get where you want to go before the police notice that you want to go there. No doubt about it? The cows that laid out the Boston streets never foresaw parades. If they had they would have gone in a straighter line to the barn.

Drilling Under Spanish War Vet

Not that I do not enjoy the boys' parade. I do, although when one is lecturing it is difficult to keep time with all the successive bands playing different march tunes in different tempos. And I do like to see them march. It reminds me of my own brief and modest experiences as a high school cadet.

That was a good many years ago, just after the Spanish War. It was in a little suburban town, now, a crowded, traffic-jammed, bustling suburban city. The high school was able to muster three small companies to make a skeleton battalion. We drilled once a week in the yard behind the school, to the harsh barkings of an elderly gentleman with pepper and salt whiskers, who had, if I remember aright, been an officer in Cuba. They called him major and I suppose he was. At least he wasn't old enough to be a Civil War veteran.

On Wednesdays we wore to school a flimsy blue blouse with brass buttons, made of cloth that would have melted in a strong rain, and uncomfortable little blue forage caps of the Civil War pattern. On Memorial Day and the annual Field Day in June—a gala event!—we wore in addition skimpy white duck pants and tan leggings. On these occasions there was an Officer of the Day in a red sash and the other officers wore aiguillettes that caught on projections, not to mention swords that tripped them up.

Curious how long that kind of uniform lasted. When I first came to Technology in 1913 the boys in the cadet regiment—long before the days of the R. O. T. C. and a corps of regular army instructors—still wore badly fitting blue suits with Western Union messenger caps and blue aguillettes, all of which made them look like bell-hops or something of the sort. Nowadays, even the Publix theater ushers would despise them for their unmilitary appearance.

War Taught Us How to Dress

Nowadays the boys of the R. O. T. C. at Technology and B. U. look like the British officers you see in the films. There is no doubt about it, the war taught us a lot about dressing up. I suppose Pershing is the only officer left now who wears the old choker collar, once regulation in all the armies of the world—

"The men that fought at Minden
They had stocks beneath their chins
Six inches high or more. . ."

Nowadays with the English fitted coat and turn-down collars, the English flaring breeches, the complicated belts and the shining puttees, our college boys in uniform are a handsome sight. And most of them seem to be aware of the fact. To say nothing of the alice-blue revers to their lapels and all the shiny insignia. I suppose the high school boys have much the same decorations and put on much the same dog. I hope so! Unless we have another war, it is their only chance to wear clothes that set off the human form divine.

I suppose that I was in the last line of the last squad of the last platoon. If they graded the boys by height, I am sure I was. I didn't mind the drill, because you can always follow the fellow next to you out of the corner of your eye. Of course, if he is taller than you are and has long legs, it will take a good bit of catching up from time to time.

But what I could not stand was learning the drill book by heart and reciting it. I do not think I ever had any difficulty in learning anything else. In class I was a glib and eager reciter. I could learn poetry just by reading it once. But military tactics was a different matter. The cadet officer called your name and you pivoted on your heel, marched down the long line (if you were in the rear rank), round the end, down the long rank again, front and center, right-faced and fronted the company, carried arms or presented them or ported them or something—and dried completely up!

I do not ever remember drying up so thoroughly as on one such occasion. It was catastrophic. The entire War Department could not have got a word out of me.

Escaped Militarism in Cambridge

Then you reversed the procedure and went back to your place and meditated running away to sea. Only the thought that maybe they played the same sort of game on board ship, and that if you didn't answer the admiral's questions properly you walked the plank, prevented a tragedy. Fortunately a few months later I moved to Cambridge to school, where there was no militarism, and have never since presented an arm.

I can't say I bear any malice, even against the bird who compiled the manual of arms. I can't say that the procedure did me any good and I doubt if it did me any harm. I suspect that for the average boy the routine of high school drill rather kills the taste for soldiering. The pacifists who want it abolished because it makes the boys militaristically minded, are, like most reformers, bad psychologists.

I should not be surprised to learn that the growth of military training in our schools and colleges since the war is in direct ratio to the growth of anti-militarist feeling. That is, except among the officers. The college cadet officer usually makes a West Pointer look and talk like a Quaker. If the militarists really want to keep the martial spirit alive, I am afraid they will have to make all the boys officers.

CROWD CHEERS 17,000 HIGH SCHOOL CADETS

MARCHERS AT FOOT OF BEACON ST. HILL

Scene at Beacon and Charles sts. corner of Boston Common as high school cadets, 17,000 strong, came marching down the hill after passing in review before Governor Ely and members of his staff at the State House. The turnout of the schoolboys today was declared one of the best since military training was inaugurated in Boston's school system. Before reaching Park st. and passing the governor's stand at the State House, the cadets were reviewed on Tremont, at West st., by Mayor Curley. (Staff photo.)

PASSING THE GOVERNOR'S REVIEWING STAND

Closeup at top shows platoon of Commerce high school cadets in the march down Beacon st. after the review at the State House. Thousands of spectators, including relatives of the marchers, cheered the paraders on the State Capitol hill and elsewhere along the route of march, undaunted by threatening skies and occasional sprinkling of rain. ## SAY EX-PASTOR WASN'T DRUNK

Contradictory testimony by Police Sergeant Ernest Fisher of Wellesley, two doctors testified today in probate court at Dedham that John J. Callan, former rector of fashionable St. Andrew's Church, Wellesley was not drunk on the night of May 18.

Callan is on trial before Judge Joseph R. McCoole charged by his divorced wife with contempt of court in failing to obey its decree regarding stated periods he was to have their three children in his home.

She alleges that Callan, on the night of May 18 was drunk and refused to allow the children to return to her.

Dr Edward Bancroft of Wellesley testified that while there was a suggestion of wine on Callan's breath when the physician was called to the house he performed satisfactorily several tests prescribed by the doctor.

During his visit, Dr. Bancroft testified, he heard Callan instruct his daughter to telephone her mother and say he could not bring himself to send the children back to her because he felt that her home was immoral.

Dr Daniel B. Coleman, also of Wellesley testified that Callan, when the doctor saw him, was in "a highly emotional state," and he felt that Callan had taken "some sedative or hypnotic."

Vallucci Lays Killing of Berger to a 'Stranger'

Arthur Vallucci of New York told police a stranger must have shot Jack "Kid" Berger of Chelsea, according to testimony offered in his trial in Suffolk Superior Court today.

Vallucci is charged with assault with intent to murder Berger, the trial being the outcome of the shooting in Winthrop, Jan. 14, when Harry Wolen of New York was slain and Berger and Vallucci wounded. Berger is under indictment for the second degree murder of Wolen.

THREE IN CAR

The alleged statement of Vallucci was read to the jury by Asst. Dist.-Atty. Frederick Doyle, after Police Stenographer William J. Shannahan had identified a transcript of an interview.

The interview was obtained by Homicide Expert James A. Dennessey at Massachusetts General Hospital on Jan. 16.

Vallucci said he and "Brown," an alias for Wolen, got suits from a tailor shop, and then took a stroll.

Q.—You and Brown were in the car at the time of the shooting? A.—Yes, sure.

Q.—There were three men in the car at the time? A.—I think so. I'm not sure.

Q.—Who was the third man in the car? A.—I don't know who got in. He (Brown) was talking with someone. There was someone in the car when they hit me.

Q.—Brown was killed instantly, wasn't he? A.—Was he? I was shot. I fell down and got up and was holding onto myself.

Q.—Who shot Berger? A.—I don't know how Berger got shot. It must have been by a stranger. I got shot and started trotting along.

The next witness was Mrs. Catherine Dirco of 8 Main st., Winthrop, who lives near the scene of the shooting, at Sunset ave. and Main st.

She testified she was standing at the corner of Sunset rd. and Main st., when the death car sped towards her from Orient Heights

She told of hearing shots and seeing Berger get out of the car, holding his stomach.

"He said he was hurt," she testified, "and asked to be taken to a hospital."

EXTRA POLICE IN SOUTH END

Extra police details flooded the South End today to guard against any new flareup of gang warfare, which broke out early yesterday and resulted in the arrest of Timothy J. Coffey, Gustin gangster.

Coffey, who suffered a broken nose and jaw when he was beaten after a chase into a Washington st. restaurant by rival gangsters, is in a state of collapse at the City Hospital today.

A police guard was placed over him to prevent any attempts to do him further harm.

In addition to the injuries to his nose and jaw, Coffey also suffered the loss of several teeth and was injured about both arms.

He will be questioned further when he is released from the hospital. Two other men, Anthony Dambroski, 22, of Middle st., and Richard O'Connor, of Newman st., both of South Boston, believed to have been with Coffey during the shooting which preceded the beating, are also being held for questioning.

17,000 High School Cadets Win Cheers in Parade

It takes more than threatening weather to discourage youthful enthusiasm, and 17,000 Boston schoolboys were on hand this morning for the march of the school brigades.

Thousands of citizens banked the streets along the line of march, although lowering skies undoubtedly kept many more at home.

GIRLS PROMINENT

Tom McGagh, 17, of the Dorchester cadets, collapsed while the review on the Common was in progress. He was treated at the Red Cross tent. He lives at 34 West Tremblett st., Dorchester.

The march of the apprentice soldiers began at Clarendon and Tremont sts. in the South End and was through Clarendon st. to Stuart, along Columbus ave. to Tremont, up Park and down Beacon sts. to the Common. There the marchers lined in review and were dismissed.

Mayor Curley reviewed the parade at Tremont st. and West st. City officials and school authorities were with him.

Gov. Ely gave the marchers a wave and a salute from the reviewing stand at the State House.

The boys wore the conventional khaki, and made a most soldierly appearance. They were commanded by Rudolph J. Ozol of Mechanic Arts High School acting cadet major-general for the big day.

REVIEWED BY OFFICIALS

Mayor Curley reviewed the parade at Tremont and West sts. He was accompanied by his daughter, Mary, and son George, two city councillors and City Messenger Leary.

Gov. Ely gave the marchers a wave and salute from the reviewing stand at the State House. Adjt.-Gen. John H. Agnew and the governor's staff were with him.

The boys wore conventional khaki. There were 35 regiments and 30 fife and drum corps.

Rachin of Roxbury Memorial high school; the 2nd by Sumner [illegible] English high; the 3rd, John H. Hove, Boston Latin school; the 4th, John Sullivan, Dorchester high; the 5th, [illegible] E. ### Parade Is Cause of Big Traffic Jam

Many motorists were late for work and appointments this morning as a result of a peculiar traffic jam at Berkeley and Tremont sts., South End.

Dozens of Elevated cars were parked there, end to end, waiting for the breakup of the parade of schoolboy regiments.

They were so close together nothing could get by. Perspiring motormen could think of no solution. Police reserves were sent. The cars were separated so that lanes were made for motor vehicles.

MAYOR CURLEY ASKS FEDERAL RELIEF FUNDS FOR NEEDY CITIES

MAYOR TO LEAD DELEGATION TO CAPITAL

Back From Detroit, He Declares New England Is Better Off Than Mid-West

Mayor Curley, back from Detroit, today declared Congress should add an amendment to the reconstruction finance corporation act, allocating $500,000,000 to municipalities for meeting bond maturities for which no money is now available.

As the chairman of a committee of mayors, Curley will be spokesman at a conference with President Hoover next week.

CITIES NEED AID

"The government has provided," he said, "financial relief for banks, railroads and the farmers, but there has been no effort made to extend this form of relief to municipalities which cannot pay maturing bonds and which cannot refinance them under the conditions which exist.

"I see no objection to permitting municipalities to share the benefits of the reconstruction finance act, and I am firmly convinced of the justice of the proposal which will be presented to President Hoover next week in behalf of the mayors' conference in Detroit."

Mayor Curley said financial and industrial conditions in New England are not comparable with the situation in the mid-west.

NEW ENGLAND FORTUNATE

Reports of industrial conditions convinced him that the situation in Massachusetts and New England is much more favorable than the conditions which were pictured in midwest and western cities he said.

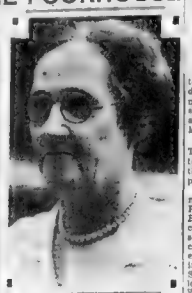
The committee which Mayor Curley will head will also ask President Hoover to consider an appropriation for direct unemployment relief, as well as a $5,000,000,000 bond issue to finance a national public works program.

Mayor Curley was accompanied by Mayor Murphy of Somerville, and both expressed the opinion that the Detroit conference of mayors will prove of benefit to American cities.

AGED FOUR FACE OVER THE HILLS TO THE POORHOUSE

LIFE SAVINGS GONE, HOME THREATENED

Three of the four aged Marblehead women, occupants of the home for the aged conducted by Mrs. Blanche W. Green, whose home is threatened by a bank foreclosure. They are Miss Georgiana Eastland, 80; Mrs. Carrie Rogers, 78, and Mrs. Margaret A. Woodfin, 77. They face eviction unless some way is found to aid them. (Staff photos.)



GOLD STAR MOTHER

COMFORT HOME TO BE PLACE OF SORROW

Comfort Home for the Aged, conducted by Mrs. Sweet in Rockaway ave., Marblehead, on which a Salem savings bank threatens to foreclose its mortgage and evict the gold star mother and her four aged charges, leaving them no place to go but over the hills to the poorhouse in the sunset of their lives.

AGED FOLK FACE EVICTION

Marblehead, June 3—Unless the mills of mercy grind swiftly in the next few hours it will be "over the hills to the poorhouse" tomorrow for four nice old ladies of Marblehead. The youngest of them is 77. The eldest is 10 years older.

The women are boarders at the home for the aged conducted in Marblehead by Mrs. Blanche W. Green, a Gold Star mother.

Mrs. Green is out of money. A Salem savings bank is pressing her. Unless Atty John V. Phelan gets a restraining injunction, the Marblehead selectmen will evict Mrs. Green tomorrow, and her pathetic old guests will have no place to go but the almshouse.

The other women are Miss Georgianna Eastland, 80; Mrs. Carrie Rogers, 78; Mrs. Mary A. Woodfin, 77, and Mrs. Frances Barnfield, 67.

The first three turned their life savings over to Mrs. Green and her home for aged gentlewomen years ago. Mrs. Barnfield is kept at the home by the Lynn department of public welfare.

Mrs. Green and her assistant, Mrs. Effie Shackford, say that bad luck dogged her and she has spent to the penny the old women had. Save Mr. and all of her own keeping them in self-respecting comfort.

Her son was wounded in the war. He committed suicide after being invalided home.

FROM ALL ACCOUNTS THE CRUISE WHICH STARTED out from the Corinthian Yacht Club about ten days ago was a great success . . . and did they have a good time?

ANNE DICK

About 18 boats of all sizes and shapes eventually wound up down in Chesapeake Bay for a round of parties and picnics, visiting from one boat to another or going ashore to have a merry time.

The du Ponts of Philadelphia gave a large dinner for about a hundred guests at a summer camp near Philadelphia which they have just purchased from another member of the du Pont family . . . you know, this illustrious family has many branches and roots . . . and apparently it was an affair to be remembered in their memoirs.

The du Ponts are very democratic. The A. Felix du Ponts are very popular down at Osterville, Cape Cod, where they go for the summer. Their beautiful estate boasts of an airport, and the male members of the family hop into their planes to go to business in New York each morning as casually as you and WE climb into the old flivver . . .

Tragedies Dim the Pleasure of Some

SEVERAL TRAGEDIES OCCURRED DURING THE course of the cruise which for a while dimmed the pleasure of the other yachtsmen. One of the Barclay boys, of the prominent Philadelphia family of that name, was badly burned when his boat caught fire while it was being filled with gasoline as it was drawn up alongside the wharf. He had been in the habit of filling while his motor was running in the past, we were told, and this was the cause of the conflagration . . . a spark from the motor ignited the re-fueling gas, and in less than a minute's time the entire deck was a seething mass of flames . . .

Someone had presence of mind enough to tow the burning craft out into the river where it burned until it eventually sank. Young Barclay was on the boat at the time with a friend, or helper, and they were both caught by the flames and seriously burned. There was no time to save any personal effects . . . or other valuable cargo, such as a jewel-case or 50 cases of something more precious than jewels these days. There is much moaning at the bar abuot THAT . . .

Other Picnics

THERE WERE MANY PICNICS ashore but our Fair Informant did not enthuse about them . . . she said they were too buggy. What is a picnic without a bug or two?

ANOTHER MERRY CRUISER dropped dead one morning after a colorful "night before" . . . but we were told he had heart trouble anyway.

MANY JOLLY TARS ARE not planning to sail the seas this summer, leaving their boats in dry dock during the depression . . . but we can imagine that as the season wears on and the days grow warmer and sunnier a goodly number will change their minds.

In Paris

THINKING OF SAILING REMINDS us that Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge who sailed from these shores a couple of months ago to visit her daughter, Mrs. Woodruff, who resides in Paris and who is awaiting the "blessed [illegible] fortunate enough to be [illegible] during the illness of her brother, Amos Lawrence [illegible] one of the gay old boys [illegible] and [illegible] some time ago [illegible]

HE TOOK UP RESIDENCE in Paris and we understand will not return to these shores . . . He has been in a hospital for several weeks, during which time he lost his appendix or something, but we hear, will be ready to enjoy Gay Paree again in the near future.

On Trip Abroad

LEAVING THESE SHORES recently, Mrs. Roland Clough en route to England to visit her newly married daughter, Mrs. John Rathbone (Beatrice Clough) who was debutante of last season, was presented at a tea at her home on Beacon st., became engaged soon after and was married in Trinity before the year was out. Quite an eventful year for one little "bud." Mr. Rathbone is a relative of the lovely Livermore girls, Lorna Grace and Elizabeth.

Mrs. Rathbone

WE HEAR THAT ANNE DICK, who suddenly dropped out of all things social, is studying writing in earnest and is a "budding genius" . . . how nice to hear that one "bud" is really "budding" . . or is it blossoming?

New Custom

IT IS BECOMING QUITE the thing [illegible] to "give their daughters away" . . . Frankie Hamlin's new father-[illegible] Mr. Waterbury who [illegible] estranged from Mrs. Waterbury performed the honors at his daughter's wedding last week. It happened in Boston when Hallum Movius, divorced husband of Mrs. A. West Movius, gave [illegible] fair Rose to Potter Palmer [illegible]

BOOKS AND CHARACTERS

By Lincoln Kirstein

Among the many things which people too often take for granted is that branch of utility and decoration which comes under the common heading of architecture. How seldom when we sit in a room for example, waiting for a play to start or a lecture to commence, have we any particular [illegible] be sure, there are certain [illegible] lack of [illegible]

There was a definite [illegible] purpose fulfilled by [illegible] door [illegible] and window [illegible] lar special [illegible] erned by a multitude of reasons. To many of us architecture [illegible] the photograph of a Greek temple which we remember from school days, or by a more immediate association, the bank building or postoffice that most resemble that photograph.

Architecture is generally understood to have something to do with a fluted column, the more columns [illegible] better architecture.

EVOLVED FROM TREE TRUNK

As a matter of fact, in the beginning columns did have [illegible] thing to do with architecture. [illegible] origins of columns were of [illegible] tree trunks which, stood upright supported the walls in a simple structural function. The early architects grew more skillful in the use of stone and cut the [illegible] blocks in the form of the [illegible] trunks gradually forma[illegible] shape into the proportions we now recognize as "classical."

The Greeks, in their stone temples, froze into marble various features of the older buildings which in weaker wood were actual necessities, holding-pins, cross beams and many supports, but which in the stone were merely decorative.

So great was the skill of their [illegible] was their [illegible] proportion that their imitative attitude [illegible] type for the [illegible] of future generations, [illegible] tions and redu[illegible] and arches, [illegible] steps, the vocabulary of Roman architecture was [illegible], and most of the government buildings in the United States share their frigid dignity in the repetitions of ancient monuments.

ENORMOUS CHANGES

The Greeks, for example, discovered no new structural principle, no new way to rear walls. They already had the arch, the roof bearing walls, the post and lintel. The Romans were more daring in the use of great arched enclosed spaces and developed the plastic use of concrete. But that exterior skin of decoration of mould[illegible] and pilasters which is generally considered to be architecture was merely a costume on the same old skeleton.

With the invention of structural steel beams and concrete floors enormous changes have been made in the history of architectural possibility. No longer do the walls support the floors of our buildings but rather the interior shell supports the exterior facing.

It would be impossible, for example, to support a building of [illegible] stories by the use of stone walls alone, even with a complicated system of flying buttresses such as the Gothic architects [illegible] ly developed. And yet [illegible] architects with [illegible] for the erection of great [illegible] fices deny their material [illegible] dividual aspect and coat them [illegible] classical columns and Goth[illegible]

3 VALUABLE BOOKS

The Colonnade of [illegible] over a great Roman hall, but conceals a small library in its cap.

Three books which are extremely valuable for the simple comprehension of the history and purpose of any architecture, but with particular reference to the building of our own times are Modern Architecture, Brewer Warren and Putnam; Modern Architects, and The [illegible] Architecture [illegible] W. W. Norton), all by Henry Russell Hitchcock; the last [illegible] ration with Philip [illegible]

Mr. Hitchcock [illegible] a very vivid [illegible] shows how [illegible] of our [illegible] n relation [illegible] of the [illegible] which we work, and [illegible] work in the new-[illegible] daringly carried [illegible] mainly abroad where the fin-[illegible] have acted more as an incentive to the present than as a deterrent. He shows how the best uses of steel, glass, al[illegible] and even [illegible] not [illegible] to imita-[illegible] wooden [illegible] usually makes [illegible] style of [illegible] has al-[illegible] expres-[illegible] the [illegible]

"INTERNATIONAL STYLE"

Mr. Hitchcock and Mr. Johnson prefer to call this modern style the International Style for its [illegible] spring from Chicago as well as Paris rather than the modernistic. The term modernistic they even use as a term of contempt. They understand modernistic to mean that kind of new decorative veneer which, though it is true, gives up the superficial use of columns, garlands, urns, etc., invents a spurious kind of ornament for itself, nevertheless continuing to use the structural materials as a mask for the real purpose and use of the building.

An excellent [illegible] of a modernistic building is the new federal postoffice in downtown Boston. The huge steel framework, light and airy as the skeleton of some ingenious machine is being hung all over by heavy panels of granite, which negates the very meaning of its existence.

While there will be no columns applied to its surface to shut out additional light, nevertheless the massive aspect of its unyielding silhouette has been gained by the artificial and unnatural employment of materials that no longer mean anything to a modern, nor merely a "modernistic" architect-engineer.

How quickly the "modernistic" style [illegible] can be [illegible] of the Chrysler building in New York, whose elaborate Christmas tree ornaments of stainless steel are coated by the acrid dust of Manhattan's furn[illegible] and whose complicated marble basket-work is as old-fashioned as an early radio-[illegible]

GIRL UNDER 16 IS 'TERRIBLY' IN LOVE, SHE TELLS MISS FAIRFAX

Boy Refuses to Make Up Quarrel

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am terribly in love with a young man to whom I was engaged for about seven months. All of a sudden we had a misunderstanding and he stopped calling me. I phoned him. I wanted to see him. We met, and he told me he thought I wanted to return the engagement ring I still keep. I told him that I wanted to make up, but he was very stubborn. Shall I call him again, or what should I do? He said he was glad to see me.

H. B.

Dear H. B.: I know it's a case of locking the stable door after the horse has gone, but we all of youngsters quarrel, and I'll go over little foolish misunderstandings, then break your hearts about making up? Your letter, which is too long to print, may be read between the lines—that the young man would not be averse to making up. Just overlook your pride and invite him to your house to call.

Says He's Too Good for Her

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I'm in love with a girl with whom I went for eight months. We broke up last August, and she is now going with a former boy friend. Sometimes we go out together, and I keep asking her if she will try to forget the past and start all over again; but she keeps telling me I'm too good for her, and that I should give her time to think it over.

ANTHONY.

Dear Anthony: What's the reason this girl tells you you're too good for her? Is she wild, or is it just an excuse to keep you at a distance and not put you back on the old friendly footing? If she's what is known as "wild" I believe I'd take her at her word and let things stand as they are.

THE GIRL WITH A PERSONALITY' :-: Drawn by Nell Brinkley

HEREWITH, to furnish my picture with poetry instead of my usual prose, I offer for your perusal and pleasure a poem by Mr. E. M. Carney.

It explains with rhythm the array of girls above, without any more words of mine. But I must explain the writer of the poem. He is no longer very young nor yet growing old. He has silvering hair, but a boy's face. Through all the years of sticking to the business end of life, he has reveled in the songs and the verses of the men of poetry, his heart in the air of beauty with them, his head closer to the earth—making money for himself.

I have refrained from pointing out the girl "with PERSONALITY." I will let him and you pick your own. Had I done so, you would anyway.

But—I have a sneaking bent toward the girl in the upper left-hand corner!

NELL BRINKLEY.

TO THE GIRL WITH "PERSONALITY"

There are girls of maddening beauty
That would drive a man to drink
There are silly girls
And frilly girls
Who only think they think
There are girls who pose
And girls who doze
And girls of every kind—God knows
But the girls with Personality
Are few.

There are pretty girls and witty girls—
Some have bobbed hair,
Some have curls—
Girls vivacious—girls sedate—
Girls who chase you—girls who wait;
Girls of form and girls of face—
Girls of fascinating grace,
Charm of manner—girls of style
Some have virtue, some have guile
But it's only Personality
That counts!

There are Summer girls and Winter girls—
Girls for by'ngtime, girls for Fall
Girls for morning, noon, and night
Girls for sorrow—and delight!
But the girls with Personality
Are rare
Beauty may be theirs or not—
Makes no difference what they've got
So long as Personality
So, let them drink—but not for me—
Is there

Tall girls—short girls,
Titians—blondes—brunettes;
With eyes of brown and eyes of blue
And eyes of every other hue—
But the girls with Personality
Are few.

Men drink the health of all these girls
And toast their charms in wine.
There's just one toast that's mine,

I'll drink not to the rank and file,
Nor to the beauty, shape, or style
Of many—or of few
Personality—
And YOU!

Marry-Go-Round---Putting the Sin in Sincerity

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE MOST UNFORTUNATE moment in a love affair or a marriage is that in which a woman stops cooing "I understand you, darling," and begins saying "I see through you, old dear."

No man wants to be "seen through"! And the woman who really "understands" him is the one who never lets him know it! The average man is much shyer and more reserved than a woman. His mind is as full of 'reservations' as a popular summer hotel; and most of them are as personal and sacred to him as his toothbrush and his razor.

It isn't that a man really wants to hide anything from the woman he loves. It is just that he likes to feel that there are a few secret corners in his soul, his mind and his life which have never been exposed or explored—a few unseen places where he can tuck away his private thoughts and emotions.

Oh, yes, I'M a woman—and I know what a temptation it is to let a man know that you are "ON to him"! But, no matter what a man does, no matter what you discover about him, it is always fatal to love for you to let him know that you are "wise" to him.

Every man likes to feel that he is just a little bit mysterious and "inscrutable." Why can't a woman let him go right on feeling that way—even after marriage? Why must she be constantly prying into his thoughts and making him feel that he is guilty of "immodest exposure" of the mind?

Any bright man or girl knows that the quickest and most effective way to start a man looking about her is to make him feel that she finds him "unfathomable." That there is a hidden side to his nature which mystifies and intrigues her. Any girl knows that most effective line with which to flatter a man is, "I just can't fathom you!" Nothing makes him feel so impressive as not to be "understood."

Once he discovers that a woman is "on to him" (and aren't we all on to them?), it's just as though the game were all over and the school bell had rung for the end of recess. He is no longer a "deep, dark, fascinating mystery." "Ho-hum!"

All of which is a big handicap to a modern, intelligent woman to whom a man is just a piece of window glass. But why not humor him? The girl who can open her baby eyes wide and look up at a man with admiring awe and astonishment has won a whole lap in the race for his affections.

And no man is so miserable and restive as the one who is married to a curious woman, who is forever digging up his private thoughts, unearthing his secret emotions and probing his sacred, personal feelings. That's why so many men join secret societies. They give a man something to KEEP TO HIMSELF!

Of course, lovers and husbands should be frank and sincere. But the woman who never lets a man have a private thought is putting the soul of sincerity

Public Cries for More Sweets

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

HAVE YOU a suppressed desire for hot fudge shortcake, richly dark with chocolate syrup and topped with billows of whipped cream? Is your secret passion apple pie a la mode—the deep dish sort of pie where chunks of apples bulge and a flaky crust, over which melts a young mountain of ice cream?

Recently a nation-wide survey of food likes and dislikes has been afforded, as a consequence of the "all you can eat" for a fixed price, a plan recently adopted by several large restaurant chains. And the survey proved that what the average American from 6 to 60 wants is not the sustenance of soups or the realism of roasts, but larger and more luxurious desserts—and a second and third helping of them.

The wise restaurateur is immediately active on this demand for more sweets.

Wise housewives who have followed this survey, will no doubt be keenly interested in adding to the list of home desserts

CHOCOLATE CREAM TARTS

Smooth 2½ tbsps. cornstarch with a little milk, add more milk (using 1¼ cups in all), and combine with the contents of one 13-ounce can of chocolate syrup. Cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly until thick, then let cook for 15 minutes. Cool. Meanwhile bake small round tart shells and a similar number of flat circles the same size as the tarts. When cold, fill the shells with chocolate mixture, place pastry circles on top, cover with a little more chocolate, and then top with unsweetened whipped cream. This makes 10 to 12 tarts.

Vaccination Routs the Smallpox

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

A RECENT newspaper report stated that a severe epidemic of smallpox was sweeping China in the area of the war maneuvers. Famine and unhygienic conditions have resulted in a most unsanitary existence in that densely populated country. By speedy administration of smallpox vaccination and improvement in sanitary conditions, it was hoped this dread disease might be controlled and prevented from spreading to other parts of the world.

Dr. Copeland

At one time smallpox was known as one of the most serious of all diseases. Each of us is indebted to Edward Jenner, the man who first introduced vaccination in 1796. The value of vaccination came to be recognized throughout the civilized world, and it has become a compulsory procedure in many countries.

It is well known that wherever smallpox vaccination is compulsory, smallpox is rare. Unfortunately many of our States do not make vaccination compulsory.

I would like to impress upon readers that smallpox, though a rare disease, still exists in North America. More than 150 deaths were caused by smallpox in the United States in 1929. That number could be greatly reduced, if not entirely eliminated, if compulsory vaccination were enforced throughout the country.

Contrary to the claims made by so-called anti-vaccinationists, vaccination is a simple and safe procedure.

The first vaccination should be given between the ages of five and 11 months but if the child is in poor health and has a skin disease vaccination should be delayed until good health returns. The first vaccination should not be considered successful unless a small scar is left.

The second vaccination may be given when the child enters school. It may be on the arm or on the leg, but preferably on the arm, where the part is free from dust and monsters, and where it heals more quickly.

Olive Gives Nevis Big Surprise

"BILL, YOU ought to see Lucy Morrow . . . she's gotten so fat she has to have a specially-made sedan! And Lois French is marrying Dan Kirkwood—can you bear it . . .? of all the funny couples! And your father has a new car, a beauty," said Nevis.

Westlynne news too. "Olive's gone off on her father's new yacht," she said, and shot him a glance from under her eyelashes.

But in a week or two all the gossip had been exhausted and the new clothes were an old story by the time a month or so had passed. And it was the rainy season and there was a hurricane that mercifully had passed them by and struck at other places, but left them pretty bedraggled having been up all night wondering if it would hit them or go on over. And the roads were rivers and the rivers themselves swelled and came down bearing all sorts of extraneous matter with them such as dead chickens and drowned goats. And there was an earthquake or two, minor ones but a little startling not that Nevis wasn't used to them by now. There was usually enough earth tremor to set the pictures on her walls to dancing or to leave them askew at least once a day or so. And there were mosquitoes and malaria and by the time the winter had come she was pretty much back where she had been. And Linda had gone home, for a few months, to do winter sports at Placid and get the tropics out of her blood for a time, she said.

NEVIS DESPAIRS

Nevis had told Bill of Walter Martin's attitude and Bill said [illegible]edly "Well, I won't quit. When he's got a decent job for me, he can write and tell me. We'll get along here meanwhile. It's time," said Bill, "that I saw one job through, isn't it?"

She said to herself desperately "Why is it that we don't get any nearer that things are so different?" She meant [illegible] they not achieved a perfect [illegible] and unity. She thought in a way we might [illegible] as well be back where we were. We'd be [illegible] at any rate.

But the change of [illegible] had brought [illegible] alteration of emotional circumstances. There was, she decided, [illegible] as much temptation for Bill in Linda as in Olive. Not that Bill was [illegible] altogether an impeccable creature, a ladies' man. He wasn't. But women liked him and he liked them. And wherever he was there would be some bored and generally attractive woman to let him know she [illegible] him. Nevis inquired of herself frankly enough . . . and if I felt better and there was a man down here as attractive as Harry Carter and Bill was away all day, what then? It seemed to her that instead of cutting a rope which bound her to a set of circumstances and cutting it as a grand [illegible] on for all time she had simply stepped from a merry-go-round into a maze.

But she wouldn't take the count of ten. Save for her tears at the time her mother's letter reached her, she had not [illegible] told Bill that she was unhappy; and if he was she didn't know.

ENOUGH EXCITEMENT

He had adjusted himself as always did and there was enough excitement to keep him going. There was to be more.

For toward the end of February a great, long, feline looking car drove up the steep road to where Nevis' house was perched. Someone got out [illegible] and slim and smartly dressed and ran lightly up the steps. Nevis was sitting on the screened side porch writing home. She wore faded riding breeches and puttees and a yellowing silk shirt. Not that she rode, but because in such a costume she had some protection from mosquitoes. She had not heard the car, and hearing the step, she thought it was one of the neighboring women. She pushed back the hair from her forehead—since returning to Porto Rico she had been unable to get a decent hair cut—and looked up, without much interest.

"My dear," said the girl on the other side of the screen, "it's too heavenly to see you. Where's old Bill? I'm down on the yacht with half a dozen stupid people. I left 'em at San Juan . . . and drove over. Can you put me up for a couple of days . . .?"

Nevis rose. She stared unbelieving. The other girl said "The door's locked . . . aren't you going to let me in?"

Nevis walked over and took the hook from the door. She said quietly, and actually smiled when she said it.

"Why, of course, Olive. Come in . . . are those your bags out there?"

Olive walked in, her slow gaze casually observant. "My dear . . . what a quaint little house," she said girlishly.

OLIVE GONE GIRLISH

It was then that Nevis perceived that Olive had gone girlish. No other way to describe it. The [illegible] and languors had departed. Her clear pale skin was washed clear of makeup save for a deft, soft touch of color on her mouth. Her clothes were set to the tempo of a happy medium not boyishly severe and not all feminine frills. They were smart, becoming, youthful. Her lids were more widely open than Nevis had ever seen them, her gaze direct, straightforward. She took off her small chic hat and held it in one hand and Nevis saw that her hair was now short, parted on the left side and loosely waved. She wore no earrings. Nevis said blankly.

"How amazing to have you here. We've a guest [illegible] of sorts. Do you mind sharing a bathroom? I hope not, because we only have one."

She took Olive into the little unused guest room which was furnished with austere simplicity. Olive said

"It's so lovely . . . What a country . . . I'm mad about it . . . such color and life . . . I will hate to leave it. Nevis, you don't mind, do you, that I ran away from the stupid party and came here? I had to see you and Bill and I was tired of sightseeing, tired, too, of the yacht. It's so trying, cooped up in such a small space with people, no matter how much you like them."

FANTASTIC PERSON

The native chauffeur [illegible] bent low under a weight of bags. Nevis conscious that her [illegible] and [illegible] breeches were creased and rumpled, that her hair needed the attention of a comb and her nose a coating of powder, watched Olive briskly set to her unpacking, watched her lay her gold and tortoise shell toilet things on the dresser, her jars and bottles of crystal and gold, watched her shake out any number of [illegible] intricately simple gowns and hang them up in the [illegible] fashioned wardrobe and listened meantime to her chatter. Olive was animated, she was alive. It was as if something of ivory and ebony and hard bright jewels had come to life. What a fantastic person, thought Nevis. She had, it was evident, tired of her role of mysterious allurement, of heavy-lidded siren and had slipped back to an intensely vital seemingly frank girlhood again. And Nevis' heart sank. Somehow Olive's present role was just the right one, the antidote to the climate and might easily intrigue Bill once more. Had she arrived as formerly, trailing clouds of glory [illegible] incense, heavy perfume, languors he might have been irritated by her absurd theatricalism. But she was cool and competent and more attractive than ever.

DAD IN PARTY

The native chauffeur departed having received his instructions. Nevis heard the car move away. Olive explained. "If you'll be a dear and keep me with you, he'll come back for me, in a week. Dad and the others are making all sorts of side trips. I ran away," she added with a glance that would have been pure mischief coming from anyone else. Emanating from Olive, it was incredible.

"Who's with you?" Nevis asked, not that she cared.

"Oh, Dad . . . and the Fellowes—they're a middle-aged couple—and Fan and Tom Jordan . . . you met them at my house, didn't you? And a lad named Howell Moore . . . nice boy," said Olive carelessly, "he's a nactor, perhaps you saw him a couple of seasons ago in 'Where Is My Husband'?"

"An actor?" Nevis remembered Dona [illegible] [illegible] She replied further: "No, I don't think I saw him. But I was home, you know, recently and saw something of Della. She said that you were interested in—an actor."

"Put like that," Olive remarked laughing, "it sounds awfully nineteen hundred-matinee-idol-stage-door-crush and all, doesn't it? But Howell's a dear person. We get along."

Nevis thought, they've quarreled. She's come here to see Bill and to teach the new one a lesson.

Nevis laughed suddenly.

"What's the joke?" asked Olive, amiably.

"Nothing," Nevis told her guilelessly.

"It wasn't so comic after all, Nevis thought . . . here I made Bill give up his job and leave the place we cared a lot about to come down here because I thought our marriage was going on the rocks because of the sort of crazy life we led. But back in my mind I was really trying to get him away from Olive. We've been in Porto Rico a long time. Long enough to have him turn to Linda Hayes as a welcome change from a malaria-ridden, sloppy wife. And here's Olive, to make it more complicated." Well, thought Nevis, discovering her sense of humor, "we'll fight it out on this basis if it takes—all week." She said aloud "Bill will be tickled to death to see you."

"Can't we 'phone him?" Olive wanted to know, with barely concealed eagerness.

"Hardly. He's out somewhere riding the rounds or doing something which won't bring him back again until dinner time. I must go and see what Maria has for dinner, by the way." She rose. "I hope you've realized by now that the mosquito netting over your bed isn't just for looks."

"Of course. We found them in the hotel, the nets, I mean. Speaking of looks, you don't look awfully well, Nevis, darling."

"I'm fine," said Nevis stoutly. "The climate hasn't agreed with me much and I have had touches of chills and fever ever since we arrived. But my two months at home set me up in great shape."

She went out into the kitchen [illegible] to Maria. Maria [illegible] [illegible] which was a blessing. She planned [illegible] returning to Olive. [illegible] the parties for her . . . the Hayes and some of the others. We [illegible] a [illegible] of [illegible]. She thought [illegible] There was Missy Day's she might [illegible]

FANNING

—With GEORGE UNDERWOOD—

Tunney-Sharkey Fight, Bout Sure, Says Jack, Hints Gene is "Bent." ↕ Must Replete Roll, Ring, Not Wall St. Other Boxing Bits.

We Intrude on Sharkey and Get an Earfull

Gene Tunney, like many other wealthy men, is reported hard hit financially and unless there is a big change in the market and in business, don't be surprised to see the former Polly Lauder's husband return to the ring wars and meet the winner of the coming Sharkey-Schmeling duel for the heavyweight championship of the world. Sharkey himself is authority for the information that William F. Carey and Jimmy Johnston of the Madison Square Garden Corporation already have sounded out Tunney and that the Fighting Marine is in a secretly receptive mood, even if he does publicly deny that he has any intentions of returning to the game in which he won fame and fortune. When Jack Sharkey breaks training for a day to come home to Chestnut Hills for a day's romp with the kiddies he naturally seeks privacy and seclusion. Newspapermen and gabbers on fights are the last persons he wants to see. We understood that and we hesitated in dropping off at the Sharkey domicile, yesterday, even to just say "Hullo." But we're glad we did. The Squire certainly gave us an earfull.

"Don't ask me how I know Tunney's bankroll has shrunk," declared Sharkey. "Ask any investor, or holder of stocks and bonds. The holders of so-called gilt-edged securities were hit the worst. Tunney is no worse off than a whole army of us, who were well off financially before the crash came. I know personally of a whole flock of things that have happened, and are happening, which certainly offer a strong inducement to cause Tunney to alter his determination never again to draw on a five-ounce fighting glove.

GENE TUNNEY

"Take me ... [illegible] ... wanted to get out of boxing and had made up my mind to do so before the ... But I'm in it now until the ... I can make more money in the ... than I could on Wall Street, and so can Tunney. And Tunney knows that I am the only man who can draw with him ... [illegible] ... Tunney is the man I want for my next opponent before 1934 rolls around as sure as you're born. Gene has been just as hard hit as the rest of us. He'll have to ... to the ... to repair his ... [illegible] ... Naturally, he'll deny it ... [illegible] ... happens

"After I dispose of Schmeling there will only be two of us left. Tunney and myself. Carnera blew the works by his defeat by Larry Gaines, the second-rater. Mickey Walker was booed for his poor showing against the ring-worn and broken down Paolino. Walker wouldn't draw flies with anyone Dempsey? Why, that old gent is passe. Retzlaffe was coming up, but that bout with Jim Braddock here cooked his goose. No, I don't say that Ernie Schaaf's failure to put away Jack Gross hurt Ernie's chances, but Ernie is a year and a half away from a championship bout. Besides the public wouldn't stand for a fight between me and a fighter I'm financially and personally interested in.

WILLIAM F. CAREY

"The next world's heavyweight championship bout will be between Jack Sharkey and Gene Tunney. Tunney don't want any of my meat, but his shrunken bankroll is making him waver. He will not give a 'yes' or a 'no' to Bill Carey, yet, but he's thinking it over. It's worth a little bet to wager that you'll see Gene Tunney and myself in the same ring on or before one year from the coming Fourth of July. If I were a gambling man," concluded Sharkey, "I'd cover any money of those who want to wager that Sharkey and Tunney will not meet before 1933 runs into 1934. Sharkey vs. Tunney, 15 rounds, for the world's championship, some time next year, maybe before. It's a good bet."

Jack Dempsey has faded out of the headlines since his bout with King Levinsky, but will edge his way back soon, as promoter of a midnight bout in Reno on July 4th, in which Levinsky and Max Baer will fight for a $30,000 purse.

Title Bound? First Glimpse of a New Sharkey

Sharkey Back Training After Visit to Family

By FRANK O'NEILL

Orangeburg, N. Y., June 3—This morning finds Jack Sharkey rested from a day's vacation with his kiddies in Boston and straining on the leash for this afternoon's workout. Jack motored ... [illegible] ... to wrest the heavyweight championship of the world from Max Schmeling of Germany.

Nervous over the result? Not in the least. No man with the inherent arrogance of Sharkey could be nervous over a result. He knows ... [illegible] ... bragging. Just confident with an assurance that borders on arrogant disdain for a formidable foe.

... [illegible] ... in the head. He knows Schmeling knows all about him. Thinks he can beat him six days a week, but knows he will have to fight.

Sharkey has grown big since this writer saw him a year ago. His chest is deeper and his shoulders are broader. His deltoid muscles, the source of punching power, bulge under his clear, clean skin ... [illegible]

The Daily Dozen

—By Myles T. McSweeney—

A student editor at Minnesota accuses the football team of drinking too much beer. A lot of people don't believe there was ever that much.

With sublime incongruity, he pans the professors in the next paragraph for not toasting the team. Or maybe he meant dry toast.

The students may have been only loyal sons of Milwaukee who destroyed the brew in order to keep that city famous.

Milt Gaston denies Tupper Moriarty knocked him out or broke his hand on his jaw. In fact there wasn't any fight at all. Moriarty simply fell down and Gaston went to sleep at the same time.

Moriarty's friends also deny there could have been a fight. They point out that there were only 25 possible opponents for the battling umpire.

Roger Hallowell moved from his No. 2 position to fill the No. 4 place occupied by Armstrong and Ed Yeomans took Hallowell's place. Today's practice is the last before the Crimson crew goes to Red Top Sunday.

Charles J. Whiteside, coach of the crew, refused to make any statement regarding Armstrong's absence, and other Harvard Athletic Association officials also preserved ... silence.

M'KECHNIE SHAKES UP TRIBE

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 3—Walter "Huck" Betts, one of the two undefeated pitchers of the surprising second-place Braves from Boston, will go after his sixth straight victory of the season when he faces the Dodgers in the third game of the series at Ebbets Field this afternoon.

If he wins, "Huck" will pull slightly ahead of Bob Brown, his ... teammate, who ... fourth triumph over the Dodgers, and his fifth of the race by hurling four-hit ball and winning the second game of yesterday's double-header, 5 to 1, after Dazzy Vance had beaten the Warriors, 5 to 1, in the opener.

With Vance out of the way, the Braves are real confident of winning the final three games of the engagement, but Max Carey, Flatbush pilot, is equally confident that Babe Phelps can duplicate the Dazzler's victory this p. m., and that he'll find two more hurlers to stop the visitors in tomorrow's twin bill.

Connolly's Hitting Is Surprise of League

By JOE CASHMAN

Jimmy Foxx, who is now hitting 125 points higher than he finished up last season, and Tony Lazzeri, who has added 100 points to his batting average since last fall, aren't the only greatly improved hitters in the American League this year.

In fact, the surprising improvement shown by these two players isn't worth more than passing mention after looking over the 1932 batting record of Brooklyn Eddie Connolly, who shares the Red Sox catching burden.

For the latest figures reveal that ... receiver is hitting 1.. points higher than his .31 average and with the season less than quarter over he has five more hits to his credit than he made during the entire campaign last year.

Connolly's final average a year ago was .07 ... Even Mr. Ripley would have good cause to doubt that a big league catcher could be that weak with the stick, but the averages show that he went to bat 93 times and made but seven singles and one double.

The same young man at this writing has been to bat 45 times and has made an even dozen safeties for a mark of .267.

And those who have followed Connolly's three-year career with the Sox can vouch that his improvement is not due to luck but ability.

Has Discovered His Right Batting Stance

In other years he fanned most of the time and when he did connect he tapped weakly to the infield. Now he's hitting doubles and triples and when he goes out he hits the ball right on the nose.

It's an old and standard baseball belief that a hitter can never be ... [illegible] ... covered the knack after trying and discarding a dozen or more batting styles and stances.

He joined the Sox as a right-handed batter. Seeing that he couldn't hit the way he stood up, Bill Carrigan, then his manager, pointed out the faults in his stance and suggested certain changes.

The youngster spent hours in front of a mirror every evening perfecting these alterations, but when he put them into effect at the plate, he met with no more success. So Carrigan gave him up as a hopeless case.

When Heinie Wagner took over the club Eddie suggested that he be allowed to bat left-handed. He was told to go ahead. He did and he proved worse than ever.

One of the four hits the Sox made off Rube Walberg at Braves Field Sunday was a Connolly double that bounced off the leftfield wall. The only run the Sox scored against Bob Burke in the second game of the Tuesday double-header at the Fens rode home on the wings of a Connolly triple to deep right.

How come, you probably ask, the Sox held on to a player who was so hopeless with the willow for three seasons?

Has One of Strongest Arms in Baseball

Well, it happens that but for his weakness with the stick, the boy from Brooklyn would be ... the greatest catcher in the business. There's nothing he can't do back of the plate. He is smart, a perfect receiver, possesses one of the strongest arms in the game and is as peppery and game as they make 'em.

Hitting at his present clip he's one of the most valuable catchers in the league. If he ever gets into the .300 class Mickey Cochrane and Bill Dickey will have to move over and make room for him as the circuit's greatest backstop.

Venzke and Spitz Out With Injuries

Gene Venzke, who ran a 4:10 mile indoors, and George Spitz, who cleared six feet 8¼ inches in the high jump during the winter, both have withdrawn from the meet. Venzke is suffering from a ... injury and Spitz twisted an ankle in practice.

DeGlane Catches Jim Browning Napping

DeGlane, crafty and cool, wiggled out of danger before Browning could pin him. When the champion got clear of the hold he backed away against the ropes. Browning then forward, intent upon the kill.

DeGlane then [illegible] his waiting tactics. He stepped forward quickly and as Browning rushed at him he scored with an [illegible] hold and slammed Browning to the canvas for the winning fall.

When Referee Charlie [illegible] started to count [illegible] asked the official to [illegible] count so as to give the former Boston College star an opportunity to get back [illegible] later [illegible] headlock [illegible].

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

I understand that the Garden has decided to stage boxing matches only when it has a first class show to offer, but that when he does step into the field with a ring offering that Ames will still be at the helm directing affairs.

Boxing has hit a new low in this city. None of the promoters have been making any money. The Garden has decided on a watchful waiting policy in boxing until such time as the sport picks up a bit.

Mr Boston

DICK DUNN tells me the Garden will make its big play during the Summer on auto races which will be held at Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H. The first of these race meetings will be staged on Sunday afternoon, June 26. It is Dunn's plan to hold a series of races each Sunday in which the leading race drivers in the world will be featured.

Firpo Will Give Marshall Test

YOU WILL find out just how good a fighter Rudy Marshall of Cos Cob, Ct., is when he tangles up with Henry Firpo of Louisville, the old bald eagle himself, in a 10 round bout at an Argonne A. A. show at the Arena on Monday night. Marshall has been claiming the New England middleweight title. Among other things he claims he has beaten Leo Larivee.

I FIND THE rail birds around the gym touting Ino Nyholm of Maynard who takes on Ad Zachow of Dover, N. H., in another 10.

Jack Renault of Cambridge and George Salvatore of Oak Bluffs are also listed for 10 heats.

I FOUND SAMMY FULLER sitting on a stool in one of the North Station lunch rooms. The "Little John L." (apologies to Joe Humphreys) told me that his left eye, hurt in his winning tussle with Jackie Berg, is healing rapidly.

Fuller has won three bouts and fought a draw since he invaded New York. He [illegible] clicked in the big town, and will get a bundle of dough when he fights Tony Canzoneri for the title. And if Sammy licks the lightweight champion, as he did when they battled in an over weight match at the Boston Garden, he can write his own ticket.

Outsider Wins Oaks as King Watches

Epsom Downs, England, June 3 (AP). The Aga Khan's Udaipur, an outsider, today won the 154th renewal of the Oaks classic race for three year old fillies before a great crowd on the downs which included King George and other members of the royal family.

Udaipur won by two lengths from Lord Woolavington's Will o' the Wisp, with Lord Derby's Guidecca third, two lengths farther back.

Udaipur paid 10 to one, Will o' the Wisp was nine to four and Guidecca 10 to one.

MARCHING ALONG -:- Browning Uses Scissors on DeGlane -:- IN SPORT'S PARADE

Ain't we got fun! Nick Altrock, funny man of baseball, left, with Shano Collins, manager of the Red Sox, and three-year-old Billy Collins, is showing the Sox pilot and his little son just why the Red Sox are not hitting. "There must be holes in the bats," says Nick, even though you can't see them." While Altrock clowns and adds a lighter touch to the proceedings at Fenway Park, his team mates are out there bludgeoning their way toward the league lead right on the heels of the Yankees.

With the aid of Marion Betty, former amateur weight lifting and light-heavy wrestling champ, Dorothy Poynton of Los Angeles tries out a few new dry land wrinkles in training for the Olympic fancy diving title. Miss Poynton, who holds the national low board championship, is considered one of the leading contenders for the high board title.

Boston Lacrosse Team Wins Opening Game

By BILL GRIMES

The Boston Shamrocks Lacrosse team got off to a fine start by defeating the New York Giants, 9 to 5, in a game which was featured by exceptionally clever combination play and plenty of roughing, with a fist fight tossed in for good measure. The game was played under flood light at Fenway Park.

Due to the restricted area in which the players work, box lacrosse is noticeably rougher than the 12 man game. Although the Shamrocks and the Giants are not in condition, they gave a fine exhibition.

Boston will be represented by a great team in the Shamrocks. Ralph Singer in the goals, became a favorite with the crowd by making sensational saves. Malonee and Biddison, the regular Shamrock defense men, gave a fine account of themselves but the best of all as formidable as Paul Mackey, former Brown football captain, McMillan, a pair of giants, who mowed down opponents with a vengeance.

Logan was the outstanding star, scoring the first three goals, one after a clever piece of spinning and a great shot and the next two on passes from Malonee and Biddison respectively.

Girl About Town

—By ALYCE SIEMENS—

Spring

And all outside is spring.

A white-railed fence beside the road
That leads out towards the sun
Dejected, sags in mute reproach
And sadly stares at one.

And glad am I when night descends,
To blot out from my view
The signs of spring that throng my mind
With memories of you.

Hashovers:

When Walter Winchell first returned to Broadway last week he was nice, almost merry with every one . . . In a couple of days he was as before and a bit [illegible] . . . There'll be a book on the market the first of next month by a [illegible] most authority on columnists spanking one pioneer gossip and lionizing another which will cause a terrific stir . . . A school day romance blooming again is that of Dorchester's George Peber and South Boston's Evelyn Ford . . . Brighton's Reba Schultz has tresses resembling Billie Dove's in hue . . . Ernie Schaaf will box Tony Galento in Newark, Monday night, and Ernie has his own way of describing Galento in ring tog . . . Who can suggest a snappy name for the new "clipper" [illegible] boat Ernie just bought? . . . We're not sure that's the kind of boat it is either—but it sails at any rate! Dapper little Dick Dunn, Boston Garden's manager, left for Detroit last night on a hurry-up-trip to book up some big drivers for his auto races he'll stage at Rockingham, June 26 . . . First time incidentally that auto racing will be a Sunday event in New England . . . Freddie Frame, Memorial Day race winner at Indianapolis, was the first driver to sign up with Dunn . . . Success of this first race will tell the story for another on July 3 . . .

Chuckles Two Times:

Newton's Dina A. Thorsen contributes: "Some girls use dumbbells to get color, others use color to get dumbells" . . . And here's a sad-if-it's-true chuckle from Dorchester's J. F. Kneeland . . . Depression so evident on the Boston Common that the "Please Keep Off the Grass" sign could be changed to "Please Do Not Eat the Grass" . . . (Surely some of you readers can send in more original chuckles than that . . . Come on, how about it?)

Ugly Endurance!

Apropos of the Marathon we hear [illegible] planning for Revere Beach this month, curiosity goading us on we wandered into Dick Curley's Golden Slipper Marathon which was staged (until Wednesday) at the Heights Palace on 168th st. in New York . . . Marathons are sweeping the country again, drawing the [illegible] and paying the promoters in plentiful measure . . . Our first impression as we entered the Palace [illegible] us up with a start . . . Similar to the time we were on a [illegible] in Chinatown several years ago and visited that ghastly [illegible] of the derelicts there . . .

It's Like This

On March 7, sixty fellows and their girl partners began this queer contest . . . The night we witnessed it, only three couples and two solo girls were still on their feet in the contest . . . Dancing was a thing forgotten in the early days in March . . . 'Twas just a case of who could stand up without falling down the longest time . . . Thirty minutes of marathoning and thirty minutes of sleeping in their rest tents . . . (It had been only half that time until the day before when they'd all been hailed into court . . . Hoping to prevent such goings on . . . But bail was forthcoming in a speedy fashion and they were all back marathoning quicker than that!) . . . One smart couple, who'd been in several marathons in Miami, Chicago, etc., had their sleeping down to a system . . . In the daytime the girl would sleep while the fellow dragged her about and at night the fellow would sleep while the frail girl would drag him about for the thirty minute periods—and she was just about able to make it too!

One Wisecracker!

Chicago's Larry De Carrado, the most colorful of the contestants, positively fascinated us . . . He was a big, husky he-man type dressed in a black apache's suit . . . Had plenty of pep, unlimited stamina and kept the spectators in stitches with his jokes and chattering . . . Pausing to tenderly kiss his sleeping-in-dream partner . . . Even fondly patted her head, pushed back her hair from her face . . . Didn't seem to mind hauling her (Hilda Ludwig) about at all . . . They called him "The Ox Man" . . . And rightly so! . . . But the rest of them were young kids with that $1000 first-prize money a dream fortune to them that they were willing to wrack and tear down their youthful frames . . . To stay indoors for three months, restless with nervousness from lack of continued sleep . . . All for what? . . . For a lot of suckers who'd paid to sit and gape at them suffer . . . Ughh! . . . If you recall the dance marathon staged at Nantasket Beach some three summers ago, don't think this next one will be anything like that! . . . This'll take something out you just to watch it . . . But it may not get to such a stage around the Hub . . . We know what New England censorship is and about ten days of it may be okay . . . With no sights to see such as we saw in New York!

STOP PRICE CUTTING; CONFAB TIMELY

By B. C. Forbes

NEXT TO UNEMPLOYMENT, the gravest evil afflicting our economic system is ruinous price-cutting. Yet, there has been lamentably little concerted effort to check it. Almost every major industry is today suffering from injurious slashing of prices. Even in industries dominated by a handful of large concerns there has been total failure to correct this crime, a crime which hurts wage earners, hurts investors, hurts tax-raising.

While much could be done and should be done within our own borders to modify this evil, something may be accomplished by the proposed international conference to stabilize commodity prices. Americans have been led to understand that Britain's prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, originated the conference idea, but the British have been led to understand that America's ambassador to England, Andrew W. Mellon, was responsible.

"Nobody buys on a falling market," is one of Wall Street's seasoned adages. There is hardly one basic raw material or commodity which is not today selling under the cost of production. Could all prices be raised to a live-and-let-live level, conditions would be very greatly improved. The prospect is [illegible] from economic history, that as soon as it becomes evident that prices have entered a definite upward movement, there will be a scramble on the part of buyers. This applies not only to agricultural commodities, but to raw materials of all kinds and [illegible] securities.

It is extremely important, therefore, that the downswing be checked and the upswing set agoing. I am assured by inner circles that, provided Congress does its duty in a reasonable way and reasonably promptly, effective steps will be taken to inaugurate recovery in this country. The prediction is freely made that [illegible] will mark the culmination of the too-long period of nervous uncertainty, and that the advent of the second half of the year will witness a transformation—provided, always, that Washington doesn't make recovery impossible.

Price Cut Means Work for Nothing

Says Herbert N. Casson, Britain's foremost writer on [illegible]

"There are signs that the price-cutting craze is coming to an end. It has never been as bad in Britain as in America. But it has been bad enough. Price-cutting is all smash and no grab. It prevents sales as well as makes them, because it destroys confidence in prices.

"Whenever a man who is a 40 per cent fool starts to cut prices, there is always a man who is a 60 per cent fool who cuts them lower still. To sacrifice profit to volume means to do a lot of work for nothing. And working for nothing isn't business."

President I. S. Call, of Call's Bankers Service Corporation, writes this column:

"The bankers of the nation must ease up on credits or else through their own acts they will destroy themselves. Better conditions do not spring from destructive action. Destruction can only be arrested through constructive action."

Resurrect the Passed Dividends

"The stockholders of the cement industry announce with profound sorrow the passing of dividends. Gone never to return unless through resurrection by good business sense."

John A. Beeler, of the Beeler organization, [illegible] the writer's recent comment in this column [illegible] balanced budget would be preferable to an unbalanced [illegible] order." He adds:

"Unusual expenses are amortized and paid for out of future earnings. That is the way the nation paid for the war. Some such plan would be only common business sense now."

Many of us by and by will regret not following that timely advice.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

WALL street was put on edge for announcement of the much-talked-of bond stabilization plan by the circulation of inquiries from an important house for large offerings of bonds. The firm making the request sought the location of blocks ranging in any amount from 15 to 100 or more bonds whose owners may be contemplating selling. The feeler applied only to active listed issues and came from a source closest to the highest private bankers.

Foreshadows Bond Pool Operations

The belief was that this development might well foreshadow the commencement of operations by the so-called bond pool. In this respect it was significant that the request for bond offers stated firm bids would be available today or by Saturday at the latest.

Traction Liquidation Seen as Completed

Gossip is to the effect that necessitous liquidation in traction issues has been completed.

Value of Production of Dome Mines Up

Value of the production of Dome Mines, Ltd., for May amounted to $411,201, against $300,390 in May 1931. Production for first five months of the current year was $1,7[illegible] against $1,427,640 in same 1931 period.

Endicott Johnson Selling Explained

Aside from general market considerations, recent pressure against Endicott Johnson may be attributed to the necessity confronting the company of realizing inventories to current lower prices for hides. The commodity has undergone a further sharp decline within the past week or so and is selling for about half the market quotation at the close of Endicott Johnson's last fiscal year. However, the company adjusts its inventory of supplies only once a year at the year end, so that interim statements probably will fail to reflect the situation now prevalent.

Utility Tax Levy Analyzed

Proposed 3 per cent tax on utility gross revenue included in the Senate program brought forth an analysis of the percentages of earnings of certain systems subject to the levy. This showed that the ratio of gross applicable to preferred and common dividends for 1931 was 35 per cent in the case of United Gas Improvement; 28 per cent for Consolidated Gas; 24 per cent for Columbia Gas; 22 per cent for Public Service of New Jersey; 17 per cent for Commonwealth & Southern, Niagara Hudson Power and American Power & Light; 14 per cent for National Power & Light, 13 for American Water Works, 1[illegible] for Electric Power & Light and 9 for United Light & Power. In the highest brackets the 3 per cent tax would take only 7 cents from per common share earnings, [illegible] calculated.

Silver Advance Almost Ignored

Silver has been advancing this week without causing much excitement. Authorities attribute the improvement to what they regard as a practical certainty that an international conference will be held with the view of stabilizing world economic conditions.

In their opinion, if the conference concerns itself solely with economic considerations and stabilization of the world commodity price level is the objective, the relation of the world price of silver to the movement of international trade must be investigated.

Air Reduction Shows Resistance

Air Reduction has shown resistance in recent market sessions, holding above the low for the year so far in the face of weakness in other issues. At its current price of around 3[illegible] the stock yields about 8 per cent on the regular annual dividend of $3 a share.

Net income in the first quarter was equal to 77 cents a share on the 841,[illegible] no-par capital shares outstanding. While the second quarter's results are not likely to be quite as good as in the first three months, the company's earnings record is [illegible] in comparison with those of other industrial companies.

At the close of 1931 Air Reduction had net quick assets, excluding investments of $4,23[illegible], equal to 20.75 a share. Included in current assets was $[illegible] cash.

TAX ON BANK CHECKS CALLED POOR POLICY

By FRANK H. MELOON

Proposed federal tax on bank checks is meeting with a good deal of denouncing. American Banker calls on bankers generally to send their protests to Washington before the proposed tax is enacted. State Street opinion is that others than bankers might also act, as they are quite as much affected.

"How can banks open up on credit, one of the prime factors in prosperity, until they can accurately gauge the unfavorable effects of this tax? What a price to pay for the few millions of tax revenue which the tax might bring to the treasury!" says the American Banker.

"We hereby again raise our voice against this unhealthy tax feature of the generally makeshift revenue legislation which the handymen at Washington are endeavoring to patch together out of the wreckage of previous tax bills. It is another case of legislating shut the door by which business will reapproach prosperity."

General Manager Edward Dana of the Boston Elevated supplies us with interesting data regarding the past month's operations. Especially pleasing is a reduction in volume (which was already small) of accidents both for cars and for buses. Witnesses per accident appear to vary little as the number in the past month was 3.27 against 3.24 in the preceding month.

Edward Dana

Maybe the Elevated service is better from the passenger's viewpoint as well. Complaints about the service dwindled to 13 from 16 in the previous month. The percentage of complaining passengers will be seen to have reached an almost "irreducible minimum" when it is noted that last month 26,161,72[illegible] were carried over "L" lines.

Efforts of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries to develop mussel shell "farms" in Texas for the salvation of the $7,000,000 pearl button industry of the United States is meeting with considerable success, according to a report received today by the Boston offices of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. We believe there was an attempt at one time to make these buttons along Cape Cod.

Ed Young, "the Yankee Philosopher," when he's on the radio told over WAAB that Columbus got $[illegible] a day for his journey to discover America. Then we read that Columbus worked on energy created by thousands of Europeans desiring easier commerce with Asia, a "power of mass suggestion" theory. Ed Young's story sounds more reasonable. Yankee "drummers" used to be better paid than Columbus for discovering trade sources, but today many firms have lost the initiative to send out these business seekers.

New building contracts awarded in the week ended May 31 totaled $3,129,000, according to a report given us today by F. W. Dodge Corp. The average weekly total for the year to date is $2,267,300. In the previous week the total was $1,843,400. The gain shown makes the total for the past week close to that for the like week a year ago, the most favorable comparison seen in several weeks.

Grains Are Easier in Chicago Market

Chicago, June 3 (AP)—Responsive to expected downturns in wheat quotations at Liverpool, grain prices here averaged a little lower early today. For the time being, the Liverpool weakness more than offset the influence of stock market strength.

Opening at ⅜ decline to a shade advance, Chicago wheat futures tended afterward to sag. Corn started ⅛-¼ off and subsequently held near the initial range.

Cotton Easier in New York Market

New York, June 3—An easier tone ruled in cotton futures today following a steady opening a few points below Thursday's close. With Liverpool slightly higher than due, cotton sold at declines of 2 to 4 points.

SPECTATOR Says:

The market is staging the first rally in some time with possibilities of its being more than a flash in the pan. Appearance of organized support in the bond market is the big factor. Added to this is the understanding that efforts are under way to end bank liquidation of securities except where this cannot be avoided. The latter is extremely significant since stocks at present prices could have quite an automatic rebound if liquidation is checked.

Test to Come

The market will have to prove this, however, and the test will come on the first reaction. If no selling develops then, there will be more confidence in the advance.

The canny ones, though, are contenting themselves with covering short lines. Still from Missouri.

When the market wreckage eventually is cleared up it will undoubtedly be discovered that so-called insiders got it "in the neck" as well as the public.

Here and There

There was important speculative buying, largely in the leaders and in Auburn. The latter is said to harbor quite a big short interest . . . Europe bought a little stock, too. Sentiment on the other side is understood to be a little more kindly toward American securities in view of the better action of the dollar and realization that apprehension over the American gold position was highly exaggerated . . . Recent pressure on Standard of California preferred forced liquidation of the holdings of an insider.

Some of the selling in Consolidated Gas and Public Service of New Jersey came from an estate, 'tis said. Stories also are current of liquidation of these stocks by a leading railroad family which needed money since their own stock is no longer paying dividends.

Power Tax Views

Some who have been studying the power tax in the revenue bill question its constitutionality.

They doubt whether it will be able to stand the acid test, and this has been bringing some buying in the utilities, especially the leaders that have been hardest hit in the last week.

Reports have been revived that the Reconstruction Corp. will loan railroads money to buy in their bonds at present depreciated prices.

Some of the oil men are coming around to the view that petroleum will eventually end up as a public utility, which will make for better regulation of production . . . Humble Oil, subsidiary of Standard of New Jersey, is understood to be operating decidedly in the black . . . Tobacco stocks are displaying a very thin market on the upside, especially American Tobacco B.

HEARST TO BROADCAST FROM COAST ON TAXES

America's foremost Fourth Estate proprietor, William Randolph Hearst, faces microphones in Los Angeles on the West Coast tonight. He is scheduled to deliver an address carried by National Broadcasting Company facilities to every corner of the world. New England will hear his timely talk, "Painful and Painless Taxation," through WEEI of Boston, at 10.45.

TIME TALLIES

It will be 6.45 in the evening out there, and 8.45 p. m. in Mid-Western States. More than 50 radio stations in this country have been synchronized by the clock so as to transmit his vigorous voice message.

Short wave carriers convey the 15-minute discourse by Mr. Hearst to foreign lands also. Countless thousands overseas are concerned in no small measure with efforts of the United States to solve its involved tax problem and the vital necessity for balancing our national budget.

AMERICANISM ADVOCATE

As always, William Randolph Hearst can be relied upon to talk to the plain people, employing terms the great masses clearly understand, as will leaders of industry, finance, education and government. His anticipated broadcast originates in the studios of KFI at Los Angeles.

Auditions are in vogue again where WNAC stages things. Miss Eleanor Geer will receive musical groups (but not soloists) on Thursday mornings for a while. Get busy now, aspiring instrumentalists, there's your chance.

LIVELY RISE IN REGISTERED IN WALL STREET

New York, June 3—The stock market in Wall Street continued yesterday's rally today, stimulated by the speed with which the Senate and House conferees reached an agreement on the tax bill.

Sentiment also was aided by the better action of the bond market, with the rails showing signs of buoyancy.

ADVANCE IS CONFIDENT

Though an announcement on formation of a banking pool to support the bond market was not made after the meeting of the Owen D. Young prosperity committee yesterday, the pool is understood to have started operations in a selected list of senior obligations.

Stocks showed opening gains running to a point and more with American Tobacco an outstanding strong spot. There was a slight reaction in the first half hour due to profit-taking. Selling dried up on the decline and the market soon made advances of one to more than 3 points.

This was taken as a sign that liquidation had been stemmed and brought renewed confidence in the advance. The whole list started upward again and the best levels of the advance were attained with many prices the highest seen in some time.

CONS. GAS LEADER.

Utilities were strong under leadership of Consolidated Gas, which quickly spurted a couple of points. American Telephone, a laggard in the initial hour, shook off its lethargy and soon gained nearly as much.

U. S. Steel was up around a couple of points with the preferred mounting more than 3. Gains of around 3 or more at the same time showed for Peoples Gas, B. M. T., Drug, Inc., International Business Machines and American Tobacco "B."

Advances of 1 or 2 points spread over a broad list.

Heavy buying of General Motors lifted this issue after early pressure. Auburn ran sharply against the shorts. Rails were strong led by Union Pacific, Atchison and Chesapeake & Ohio.

The long suppressed and depressed bond market took a firmer hold on higher price levels and various issues that have recently been plumbing record depths staged a buoyant upward movement.

The rebound was especially noted in railways where advances of frim 1 to 5 or more points were rather the rule than the exception. The utilities also joined in the forward trek, while the industrials were firm throughout.

It was the best rally so far this year and, while dealers warned of profit-taking reactions which might follow, investors and traders generally were imbued with new hope.

Anaconda Wire & Cable Co. has reduced its price on carload lots of bare copper wire and of magnet wire ½-cent a pound and of weatherproof copper wire ¼-cent.

Phelps Dodge Copper Products also made the same reductions.

U. S. Cotton Supply Is Estimated Larger

Washington, June 3—The apparent supply of cotton in the United States on May 1 is estimated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture today at 12,119,000 bales, compared with 8,584,000 bales on May 1 a year ago, and 6,222,000 bales on May 1, 1930.

Of the May 1 supply, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics says that 1,482,000 bales were in consuming establishments, 8,146,000 bales in public storage, and about 2,491,000 bales "elsewhere," largely on farms and plantations. Mill stocks of American cotton on May 1 last year were 1,290,000 bales, stocks in public storage were 5,992,000 bales, and apparent stocks "elsewhere" were 1,302,000.

The bureau has revised its estimate of the 1931-32 world cotton crop to 27,500,000 bales, the second largest world crop on record. Production in 1930-31 was 25,800,000 bales. A productiion decrease of 1,464,000 bales outside the United States last year was more than offset by an increase of 3,164,000 bales in the United States despite a 10 per cent acreage reduction in this country.

Sharp curtailment in domestic mill activity the last two months is reported by the bureau: the textile situation in Great Britain is reported in better position than a year ago, and the rate of cotton consumption on the continent of Europe is said to be about equal to or slightly less than it was a year ago, but with larger quantities of American cotton being consumed. Mill activity in Shanghai has resumed following the almost complete shutdown during military disturbances, and mill activity in Japan in March is said to have been at the highest levels in two years.

PENN. TO HIRE 28,000 MEN

Pennsylvania Railroad is making plans to speed up work on the New York-Washington electrification project, and resumption of activity on the construction will bring employment directly and indirectly to approximately 28,000 men.

Work on the project has been at a standstill for two months. Approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission of a $27,500,000 loan by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to be made in five monthly installments beginning June 1, has made possible the resumption of work on the project.

The R. F. C., under the amended plan for the loan, is to advance $5,000,000 to the Pennsylvania on June 1; $9,000,000 on July 1, $4,500,000 on August 1, $4,000,000 on Sept. 1, and $5,000,000 on Oct. 1. Besides providing employment, the resumption of the electrification work will release orders for substantial amounts of materials.

U. S. Drug Industry Is Put on Index

Changes have been made in the list of 30 stocks used in compiling the Dow, Jones industrial stock market average, giving representation for the first time to the drug industry, through the addition of the common stock of Drug, Inc., to this group of market leaders. This change reflects the growth in importance of the drug trade, whose retail volume of business is now estimated at approximately $1,500,000,000 annually. The Dow, Jones averages are widely used as an index of stock market price trends and activity.

Eight changes which have been made, to substitute active stocks for those which had become relatively inactive or had lost their former speculative significance, include the addition of American Tobacco "B" Coca Cola, Drug, Inc., International Business Machines, Loew's, Inc., Nash Motors, International Shoe and Procter & Gamble, in place of Hudson Motors, Liggett & Myers "B," Mack Truck, National Cash Register, Paramount Publix, Radio Corporation of America, Texas Gulf Sulphur and United Aircraft & Transport.

Telephone Action Studied

New York, June 3 (AP)—In some quarters in Wall Street, it is felt the action of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. in declaring the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the common stock may be taken as an indication that the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., which controls it, has no present intention of changing its own annual dividend rate of $9.

Pacific is one of the largest of the American Telephone subsidiaries, and A. T. & T. owns more than 83 per cent of its common stock. Pacific Company in the first quarter earned $1.49 a share.

Dividend Payment Review Is Given

New York, June 3 (AP)—Total dividend payments by all American corporations reached their zenith in 1930, although business downturn had started the year before. Dividend payments that year totaled $4,200,000,000, or an average monthly rate of $350,000,000. In 1931, the total was $3,700,000,000 or at a $308,000,000-a-month-rate.

In first four months of this year the total was $1,000,000,000, or at a $250,000,000-a-month pace. The rate has been reduced substantially in recent weeks. Changes announced last week included reduction by General Electric Co. and omission of all dividends by Cities Service group.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Broadway Merry-Go-Round!

Here we go, gals and lads—around and around on this Broadway Merry-Go-Round and for a change, just keep your eye peeled on the women today—the women who ride with us on this carousel and the women we pass by in our dizzy whirl. Now, I don't have to tell you that that slim, softeyed gal with the careless haircut is Helen Morgan, but you'll notice I refer to her as slim and believe me that's a swell figure she has these days, but do you remember what it was a few seasons ago? The sweet punson's disciplined herself in a lot of ways and I love her for it just as I love that trim, gay little Sally O'Neill, my latest columnistic crush—love her particularly for the self-imposed discipline. Now, over there's a gal, you probably don't know very well—that's Margaret Miller. She hails from Washington and her folks live out in Texas or maybe it's Arkansas—I never can tell the difference—but at any rate, she's riding with us these days. A chorus gal, that's what she is, but she has a crisp, crackling mind and she's part of the Guinan crew of hoydens. Well, you wouldn't believe it, would you, but she married a West Point graduate—an aviator—and she might be living nicely and comfortably with him now—but she left him just to be on Broadway—and I personally wonder whether she's found it worth while or whether she hasn't about made up her mind that domestic comforts—even if it's somewhere in the provinces—furnish the real kick in life, even if you have to depend upon excitement in the unexpectd visits of relatives or the expected visits of relatives or the I don't know much about this myself—it's been a long time since I've had what you call and I call domestic life.

Oh, there are plenty of women to see and talk about while you ride on this carousel, take it from me. There's another nice girl over there and she's built up quite a reputation what with this and with that. I mean Ruth Etting, a sweet warbler if ever there was one, and look not more than 20 feet behind her is another talented lass, Norma Terris, and seeing the two together furnishes meat for discussion. What I'm getting at folks, is that Ruth Etting has a husband named Col. Snyder, whose one interest in life, Broadway will tell you, is to see that Ruth gets every break that's coming to her. He fights for her, pleads for her, threatens for her—and you rarely see her without him. And the same is true of Norma Terris, whose husband, Dr. Jerome Wagner, is always sure to be somewhere around. Broadway sometimes wonders whether these two devoted husbands don't interfere a little too much but the answer is that these girls have gone steadily ahead—and that should be answer enough, I imagine.

Well there's another girl—and I don't imagine very many of you know her. Her name's Charlotte Otis—and, perhaps, you may remember her in "No, No, Nanette" and "Yes, Yes, Yvette" and "She's My Baby"—(if you recall "She's My Baby"). She's not an old-timer—she's about 21 now—she went on the stage when she was 13—and what a career they predicted for her and why not. With her beauty and charm and talent. But she made the mistake of being what we refer to sneeringly as a good girl. So now she's working as a telephone operator at $18 a week. There's a tragic story connected with Charlotte—her mother dying, anxious to be assured of Charlotte's future, pleaded with her to marry a certain man of wealth, a nice fellow, but Charlotte didn't love him. Nevertheless she married him—but left him immediately—and now she plods on, plucky girl, working not only to keep her body and soul together but to pay for her brother's education.

Now, if you'll just look over there—there, where I'm pointing—yes, that's right. Know who that is? Guess. That's right—Mabel Taliaferro—you bet she's changed—but, of course, you remember her. Well, she's back in town, trying to stage a comeback. Familiar words—"stage a comeback"—most of us, at some time or other, have those words applied to us. Mabel's assisting in the promotion of a new theatrical venture. And let's stare a little at Vera Murray if she doesn't mind. A few years ago she was a great name on Broadway—practically managing all of C. B. Dillingham's theatrical ventures. But now her old office in the Globe Theater—and what rare tales that office could tell—is no more—Dillingham, the genius, lies desperately ill in his suite at the Astor—and Vera has retired from the scenes she loves so well.

Another woman. Dominant women of the theater in the past parade through the memory—Vera Murray, just mentioned—Anne Uichols, who gave us "Abie's Irish Rose"—Rosalie Stewart, who had such faith in plays by George Kelly and produced them to make herself a fortune—and now we have Mrs. Joe Leblang, widow of the late cut-rate king. You didn't hear so much of her when Joe was alive—but now she's guiding the reins—and there she is—tall, youngish, black-haired, descending the stairs to Matty Zimmerman's office down under Gray's drug store. A powerful figure in the declining theater—she supports shows, produces them, controls theaters—a full, busy life she leads and is happy.

So around and around we spin on this merry-go-round and the sights are many and interesting, but so are the women, and surely we can devote one trip today to them. Looka, we're peeking in on the stage of the old Maxine Elliott—"Rain" played there so long—and so long ago—and those boards smiled as the dainty feet of the tempestuous Jeanne Eagels stepped over them, day in and day out. Well, here another redhead dances—dressed in practise clothes—Joan Carter-Waddell, a Southern gal of trim ankles and a figure enticingly curved. "My boy friend called me from California last night," she purrs between dances—"He's gonna call me once a week." She laughs—she's happy—she's gay—she has three numbers in something called "Hey, Nonny, Nonny"—three numbers are nothing to sneer at in a new show this summer. The stage manager shows her a possible routine of the show and the hyphenated Waddell gal pouts temperamentally and protests, "No sir—not for me—I wouldn't appear three times in the second act. I won't open in this blamed show"—but yes, she will—wait and see. I wouldn't give a dried fig for a gal without temperament.

You're kicking because most of the women I'm pointing out aren't so well known. Don't be ridiculous. None of them is known—until she becomes known if you know what I mean. I don't have to be fussy—look, I can point to that grand looking girl over there—that's Ethel Merman, a gal with ambition—and take it from me, nobody has worked harder than she for her success. You can tell she's successful because people now compare her with others and some say she's not as good and some say she's miles ahead. That's the sure sign of success—when they get to comparing you that way. But I'd rather call your attention to Kitty Strube there—she sings, too—but her name's never in lights. She sings mostly to herself as she smiles. For 15 years she's been polishing the handle of the big front door of the Vanderbilt Theater—I don't mean all day long—she polishes other handles around the theater and bits of brass work—but that gives you an idea of Kitty's vocation.

To Question Suspect in Coffey Shooting

Sammy Woods of the South End was to appear at police headquarters today for questioning in connection with the attempt on the life of Timothy Coffey, Gustin mobsman.

Gossip About People You Know

FRIENDSHIP COUNTED

Personal friendship sometimes goes a long way on Beacon Hill. Because of this feeling for Rep. Augustine Airola of Revere, many members of the House openly admit voting for the bill to saddle the Chelsea division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. upon the Elevated in order to give the cities served by the division a 10-cent fare.

STEARNS SPEAKS

Commissioner of Correction H. Warren Stearns made a flying visit to New York to address medical graduates of Tufts College from New York City and environs. Dr. Stearns is dean of the college.

ANOTHER TRY

Rep. Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, has so far been turned down six different times by the Legislature in his efforts to bring about five, ten and 15 per cent cuts in state salaries. In the belief that the General Court has no right to put more taxes on the people before cutting expenses of government, Sawyer will again move his salary reduction amendment when the bill proposing new taxes comes up in the House today.

HINT AT MURPHY

City Hall gossip has it that former Rep. George Murphy, of East Boston, will be a candidate for election to the Governor's Council next fall.

MEMBERS INCREASE

S. Thomas Faloone, organizer of the Folio Club, the political group which is to sponsor the candidacy of Dist-Atty. William J. Foley for mayor in 1933, says that 100 members have been enrolled within the past few weeks.

APPOINTED MANAGER

"Charlie" Gilmore, transit man in the municipal paving service, has been appointed coach and manager of the Roxbury Blue Sox. He is a brother of "Joe" Gilmore, Boston University coach.

WHIST AND BRIDGE

Members of the Ward 4 Democratic Club, Back Bay, will hold a whist party and dance in Ritz Plaza Ballroom, 218 Huntington ave., June 16. Arrangements for the affair are being made by James Rogan and "Jerry" Shannon, two of the most active members of the organization.

QUINN TO RUN

Martin J. Quinn of 161 Broadway, South Boston, today announced his candidacy for Legislature in Ward 6, that district. Quinn is one of the most prominent young men in the district and, in addition to heading the Quinn Associates, is president of the Notre Dame Associates, secretary of the S.S. Peter and Paul Holy Name Society, and is an active member of the South Boston Citizens' Association, Pere Marquette Council, K. of C., the Alpine Club, and the Al Smith Club of that district.

What the Hearst Papers Advocate ] No. 7 [ Federal sales tax and excise taxes to replace the income tax, which has degenerated into a racket.

Our Tax Dunderheads Try to Duplicate the Orgy of Gouge at Washington

Unless the Massachusetts Legislature keeps its chin up and maintains a bit of its own self-respect it is likely to be coerced into an orgy of wild taxation like the dunderheads at Washington.

From the Capitol at the crest of Pennsylvania ave. to the State House on the crest of Beacon Hill there is a disposition to search out a few classes of property and a few classes of income and to soak them upon the head with the bludgeon of higher tax rates.

The Senate at Washington slapped a one-cent tax on gasoline. They tell us, and expect us to believe it, that the $150,000,000 to be raised by the gasoline tax will come out of the profits of the gasoline industry.

Buncombe! The new gasoline tax will come out of the pockets of the autoists, and anyone with an ounce of brains knows it.

Moreover, the petroleum industry is in bad shape, due very largely to the dumping of low-priced oils from foreign countries. This industry is hard put to it to absorb its losses, and anyone who tells us that the new national tax will come out of the profits of the oil companies, which have no profits, is either a fool or a knave.

Here at home, the State Legislature is urged to impose an additional one-cent tax on gasoline. The present gasoline tax, together with the additional taxes proposed at Washington and at Boston, would make a total tax of FIVE CENTS upon every gallon of gasoline sold in this Commonwealth.

In other words, they propose at Washington and at Boston to levy taxes equal to one-half the wholesale price of gasoline.

They talk about relieving the business depression while their energies are bent to taxing out of existence one of the most important industries in the United States.

The same goes for the vicious and injurious income tax proposals. At Washington, the National Senate doubles the rates on small incomes. Here at Boston, it is proposed to increase the rates on earned incomes 10 per cent, despite the fact that the income tax rates are extortionately high and despite the further fact that this one class of taxpayers contributed last year about $30,000,000, a sum equal to one-half of what the State of Massachusetts expends for all its purposes and all its activities.

Everybody who knows anything about taxation knows that the income tax has become an out-and-out racket, this class of income tax falls upon the good and modest and well-nigh defenseless middle-class of people, who are unorganized and maintain no lobby either at Washington or Beacon Hill. The poor do not have to pay the tax. The rich have it within their power to escape or evade it. But these good people of the middle class could not hide their salaries from taxation if they desired and they are looked upon as legitimate prey by the hungry taxgatherers.

Here in Boston, as at Washington, they talk of an additional tax upon tobacco and cigarettes, despite the fact that the national government already levies a high tribute from these products.

It is the same old story. Once the public officials find a source of taxation, they hit it upon the head year after year with higher and heavier tax clubs until they leave it staggering or prostrate.

They tell us that we must be patriotic and assume our burdens of hardship without complaint.

They rarely think of telling themselves that they should reduce the cost of government they have foisted upon us and thus eliminate the burdens they ask us to relieve.

So long as they are intent upon slugging the existing tax sources, why do they not take $5,000,000 from the existing gasoline tax here in Massachusetts and give it to the cities for relief and welfare work! By doing this, they would avoid any excuse for levying a new and higher tax upon gasoline and upon earned incomes.

The cities and towns should be required to reduce their expenses and extravagances by $10,000,000. This would meet the needs of the day. It is such a simple way out of the problem that we probably can't expect simpletons to adopt it.

Humoring the Hungry

The community organizations throughout the country which are struggling to feed and clothe the unemployed and to provide housing for the shelterless will be interested in a suggestion which emanates from a body in Washington, which styles itself the "President's Organization on Unemployed Relief."

In a circular from this organization, one learns that while "emergency relief committees are concerned primarily with providing employment, food, clothing and shelter," they should by no means confine themselves to such activities.

"Other problems press for attention," says the President's Organization on Unemployed Relief. One of these it particularly emphasizes—"to provide for the satisfying use of the free time of the unemployed."

To this end, it recommends "educational and vocational training and recreational activities."

Can the "President's Organization on Unemployed Relief" be jesting? Is not the problem which confronts the unemployed too serious to be approached in a spirit which is virtually one of levity and banter?

The suggestion of "vocational training" for skilled and industrious workmen who already possess a vocation, but have no opportunity for its exercise, sounds like flippancy.

To think that the workingman who is trying to keep body and soul together and conquer adversity by his courage and endurance can be consoled by "recreational activities" shows an unbelievable lack of a realizing sense of the situation.

It puts one in mind of Marie Antoinette's rejoiner when told that the populace of Paris was starving for want of bread. "Why don't they eat cake?" asked the ill-fated queen.

Why Not?

In 1918, "to make the world safe for democracy," this nation poured its men and its money unstintingly into the fray that was to take such a ghastly toll.

In the years that followed the Great War this nation showed deepest concern for the woes and worries of all other peoples on the globe, and again unstintingly gave of its abundance that the sufferings of other peoples might be alleviated.

Why not now DO FOR OUR OWN WHO ARE SUFFERING what we were so proud to do for others?

Millions of OUR OWN are jobless through no fault of their own; there is hunger, suffering, privation among OUR OWN PEOPLE in this Land of Plenty.

WHY NOT DO SOMETHING FOR THEM NOW?

A $5,000,000,000 Prosperity Bond issue would finance a gigantic scheme of essential public improvements and create the work needed to give jobs to the jobless; business would brighten; trade would be restored; factories would again hum, and the whole country would benefit.

Congress didn't dillydally when it came to helping others. Why does it now hesitate to help its own people?

New York Day by Day

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, June 3—Thoughts while strolling: Wonder if they still twirl drinking horns out of copy paper in newspaper shops? And after "30," wonder how long the city editor will last? Dave Apollon is a miniature of Chaliapin, the Russian dancer. Ed Dullivan, Brummel of the Broadway columnists.

Westbrook Pegler, a Minneapolis, Minn., boy, who made good in the city. Victor Moore and Emma Littlefield strolling. Rich show folk, The Dutch Treat president—"Bud" Kelland. The Astor now has a small electric sign. One of my favorite people—Gene Buck.

A coach dog in front of an auto. Wonder what he thinks? An oldtime hotel. With a glass of shot for penholders, middleaged bell boys and curb chairs. Gene Tunney could stand a feather-edge haircut. Vagrant thought: Gandni would be great for a strip poker game. Von Hindenburg walks like a penguin.

A few more George Oleens and Gene Crawleys and dentistry would become a lost art. Overheard: "I've hocked my last jewel for you." (A lady to a gent, by the way.) There's a double for Webster's "Timid Soul" in Bryant Park every afternoon. Even to the saucer hat. Frederick McKay's savoir vivre.

Sorry to hear Elmer Rogers left the Palace. Gone are the familiar faces—A. L. Erlanger, Walter Kingsley, Wilson Mizner, "Stuffy" Davis and Acton Davies. A Rolls lettered "Zit's." The boarding house where I first lived on West 57th st. Now a speak.

A Lillian Russell type of landlady presided there. And the star boarder was a one-armed leopard trainer, like the heroine in the Bromfield novel. Board and double room $14.50 weekly. In advance or else. Dick Berlin, Tom White and Dave Towne, triple tycoons of the magazines.

The dying sun on the Empire's thumb-like spire. I'd like to tick off a sonnet. The Earl Carroll, now Ziegfeld's Casino, is Broadway's up and down tempo. "Deke" Aylesworth's dandy simile: "As annoyed as a pearl diver with the hiccups." Bruce Barton's brick red, curly hair.

At the N. V. A. they were discussing pioneer acts in vaudeville. Conspicuous were McCay's Dancing Ducks. They waddled from stage pedestals up an incline to a dancing platform, where they immediately began to lift their feet grotesquely. In the argot it was "box office." The chink in the armor was rarely suspected by audiences. The platform was electrified. "One old duck," said Hap Ward, "got so used to electricity he wouldn't blink in the electric chair."

In those days, small wagon shows were largely decoys for looting small towns. Some even sold safe blowing privileges to expert yeggs. A species of circus crooks were known as "Monday Guys." During the parade, when everybody rushed to the front of the house, "Monday guys" stripped the week's wash from the clothes lines in back yards.

Perhaps the reporter who knows Broadway best — the brittleness of its shell and the yellowness of its yolk—is Damon Runyon. He has cruised through its highlights and shadows for 25 years, sipping coffee at cafe tables and grimly studying its epileptic intensity. It's not excitement for Damon for he was a reporter in hell-roaring Cripple Creek in boom days. As a cub he chased items from mining camp to mining camp, from gambling hall to brothels. Few know the clotted colorings of the seamy side so well or write about them so engagingly.

My little balloon was neatly punctured at precisely 6:24 p. m. as of even date. A man I had not seen in years, looked me over and exclaimed: "You look 20 years younger." Hopping a few clouds home, I relayed news to my wife, who beamed brightly: "He means 20 years younger financially." No wonder I'm about half crazy.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Wood Tick in Your Neck?

EVER GET a wood tick in your neck?

Elsie Robinson

Well, you needn't get so snooty about it! Some of our best necks have harbored wood ticks, dearie. And your turn may be next, so you might as well listen and learn.

The wood tick is a curious creature. Not at all impressive in his original state. Looks like a flak of animated dandruff as he sprawlson a chaparral twig, waiting for his victim to come along.

Presently a neck appears. Sheep or human, it's all one to the tick. Whif-f-f—down he drops. Then the fun begins!

Into the helpless flesh goes the wood tick's head. Five minutes after you wouldn't know him, so plump is he with gore. And still swelling. Ugh! Nasty pest. You make a grab. But he careful! It's easy enough to get a wood tick on you, but getting him off is quite another matter. That tiny, gouging head is buried deep. Pull too hastily at the tick and maybe he'll leave his head behind, as a festering nuisance, to bother you many a day.

Yes, wood ticks are certainly a blight, and the wise avoid them. Pity we can't be as wise about other pests.

Trifles, they appear, at first. Mean little hurts. Petty little slights. Tiny stabs, some of them deliberate, some of them accidental, but all of them dropping on your unprotected consciousness, burrowing in. You try to shake them off. You think you have shaken them off.

But what makes you so touchy sometimes?

Why do you get those blue spells?

How come those spasms of self-pity?

Those miserable periods of self-consciousness?

You thought you had "yanked out the wood tick." You thought you'd gotten over that hurt, that slight. Bu you haven't.

YOU'RE STILL CARRYING PART OF IT AROUND WITH YOU. AND IT'S POISONING YOU.

If you have a hurt, get it out of your system. Get it ALL out of your system.

Whatever the hurt is—someone else's malice, or your own shame, or blunder, or grief, or shock—what, ever it is, DON'T LET IT BECOME A SECRET SORROW.

DRAG IT OUT INTO THE OPEN.

Drag it all out.

Look it all over.

Size it all up.

Then chuck it for good!

Does that mean that you can entirely forget the thing that hurt you? No, of course it doesn't.

BUT YOU CAN KEEP IT FROM CONTINUING TO HURT YOU.

Wail of a Thoroughly Discouraged Man

A sad-faced man was oozing gloom.
"Ah me!" he sighed, "what bonds I had
Through some mischance have all gone bad.
Last year I lost two business blocks,
Three vacant lots and all my stocks!"
His voice heath so much sadness broke,
"And now I've lost my putting stroke!"

The skies were blue that springtime day,
But as that game of golf progressed
His chin fell almost to his chest.
"My daughter ran away to wed
A youth I cannot like," he said.
"I've lost my house and garden plot,
And now I've lost my brassie shot!"

A Bob White whistled lond and clear.
This happy call he failed to hear.
"The laundry lost a shirt of mine!"
Said I, "You haven't lost your whine!"
To such a slur he paid no heed.
"A button's gone I sadly need.
I am the saddest man alive,
Just look at me, I've lost my drive!

"I've borne so much of hurt and woe,
There can be no more grief to know.
I'm posted now for last month's dues;
There's nothing more that I can lose."
And then he drove, the ball flew high,
To settle in the rough nearby,
But no one marked the pellet's fall,
And he had lost a last year's ball!

"Pork Barrels" and the People

By Claude G. Bowers

PRESIDENT HINDENBURG, of Germany, has assumed a new role, and it is not one that promises early peace in Europe. His action in smashing the long-established parliamentary tradition in demanding the resignation of a government having a mandate from the people smacks of dictatorial intent.

The fact that he even refused to postpone such drastic action until after the Lausanne conference makes his action all the more disturbing. Whether it means he has gone over to the Fascists is still open to debate. Such is the effect, nevertheless.

The plan of Dr. Bruening, the Chancellor, to increase taxes to meet the needs of the treasury, and to break up the huge estates into small farms for the benefit of men denied the right to live by existing economic conditions in Germany, is the direct cause of Hindenburg's action.

It is assumed by the correspondent in Berlin that he has gone over to the great land owners and big business, both of which want a dictatorship, if necessary of "iron and blood," to protect them against the rising wrath of the people. However, we shall know the meaning better in a few days.

One thing Hindenburg has done—he probably has smashed the Lausanne conference: he may have invited a death struggle between the financially powerful and the masses of the people. In the end the masses will win. If sword rattling, bluster, force and terror are to determine the destiny of mankind, ten million will be as effective as one thousand.

Mr. Hoover Has Shaken Off His Inertia

Meanwhile in America we have a problem of our own, involving the millions denied their inalienable right to work to live, that makes that in Germany seem hopelessly remote. Mr. Hoover, Republican candidate for President, has suddenly shaken off his inertia which has been so deadly to the country during the last three years. He has shaken it off to lead in an attack on any plan for putting jobless men to work by a bond issue for public works. It is just as well that he make his position perfectly clear in this way since the people must pass upon his ideas at the polls.

He is unable to see the justification for a public works program of the magnitude proposed by the Democrats and some Progressive Republicans. Never in three years has he been able to see that government, the custodian of organized society, need concern itself with the unemployed. His position all along has been that if men must starve without the use of Federal money to prevent starvation it cannot be helped.

But our civilized society, with some humane instincts, and with the conservation of common sense, is going to disregard him and act. It must.

Invariably in the Role of a Critic

One often wonders how on earth even printers' ink, used for propaganda, and in the building up of myths, ever persuaded the American people that Mr. Hoover is a constructive statesman. When, at rare intervals, he injects himself into the work of grappling with human misery and its problems it almost invariably is in the role of a critic.

He and his Administration do nothing—until someone else proposes something—and then he appears, to show that this something should not be done.

The most disturbing discovery concerning the President is his evident inability to understand that you cannot restore prosperity or normal employment without first restoring the purchasing power of the people.

Democrats Misjudged the President

He was not particularly happy in his attack on the Garner plan—which included an attack on all other plans providing for a public works program and a bond issue to meet the necessities, the human necessities, of the day. When the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was proposed he thought this would revive business. It has done nothing of the sort. It has not created a job. It has not fed a hungry baby. It has not even made credit facilities easier for any but a very few.

It has done some good in other ways—but it has not and cannot revive trade, on which prosperity feeds.

The Democrats co-operated with him on that measure; but if they assumed that he in turn would co-operate with them on measures for the relief of millions of men they strangely misjudged him and his record.

Garner Tells the Tale

He was unfortunate in attacking Garner and his plan; for Garner is a fighter—a plain, blunt man with the abdominal qualifications of a fighter. In Garner's first reply he concentrated much in a paragraph:

"The Democrats did not expect to receive real co-operation from the President in any matter benefiting the masses and those who might be termed the middle class of the American people."

That, of course, is true. Mr. Hoover belongs to a school of political thought that thinks in terms of power, of money, of dividends, of stocks and bonds, and not in terms of men. Least of all does he think in terms of the little man.

"Unemployment has increased steadily and it is now obvious that the relief of the masses promised by Administration leaders through this act has failed to materialize."

Mr. Hoover Was for That "Pork Barrel"

It was most unfortunate, and entirely unnecessary, and petulant, for the President to describe the Garner bill, setting forth in detail a program of public works in detail as a business man would have it, as a "pork barrel."

"Pork barrel!" We wonder what the Grundy tariff act which has smashed our foreign trade, poured two million workers into the street, is? And Mr. Hoover was for that "pork barrel."

And what after all is the Reconstruction Finance Corporation? In the case of a certain railroad did it not turn out to be a big "pork barrel" for J. Pierpont Morgan and Company?

Just now these millions out of jobs, through no fault of their own, are entitled to access to a "pork barrel" to live.

It is time to give the unemployed, and the merchants, who are suffering because of the loss of purchasing power, the kind of "pork barrel" that will put men to work and restore the power to buy from the merchants.

Now He Turns Upon Himself

"Would that mine enemy would write a book"—or make a speech. Mr. Hoover made some speeches in 1928, and Mr. Garner has them files away. It appears—and we all remember it—that Mr. Hoover promised an enormous building program of a billion dollars. It turns out to be as much of a Pickwickian promise as the pledge to "eliminate poverty" and give us "a chicken in every pot" and "sanitary plumbing in every home."

Now he turns upon himself.

Garner quotes him; Senator Cutting quotes another of his speeches in which he commended a plan proposed at a conference of governors in November, 1928, for a $3,000,000,000 emergency unemployment fund. If something of the sort was needed then, when his administration was denying that as many as two million men were on the streets, how much more desperately it is needed now when there are between ten to ten million breadwinners out of work!

Congress Must Do Its Duty

So the issue is made.

It is not a party issue; nor a political issue; but an issue of humanity.

It is more than that—it is an issue on which the hope of the merchants rests. And more than that—an issue on which depends a revival of work in the factories.

Congress must do its duty to humanity, business and industry and let Mr. Hoover assume the responsibility of opposition. It will be a heavy responsibility.
